

Compromise Is Reached on Aid Payment Issue

Municipalities Body And Governor Heil In Agreement

CRISIS AVERTED

50 Per Cent Must be Paid This Month, Rest During February

Madison—(P)—A crisis in the state's financial affairs was averted as Governor Heil and representatives of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities agreed yesterday to a compromise on payment of $3,705,000 in highway aids to local communities.

Although the sum is due in full Dec. 15, the officials decided 50 per cent would be paid this month and the remainder by the end of February, 1940.

The emergency board, of which the governor is a member, had planned to pay the money in four monthly installments.

The league's plan to ask the supreme court to take original jurisdiction to compel payment in full probably will be abandoned.

"We probably will just forget all about it," said F. N. MacMillin, the league's executive secretary.

The adopted program, proposed by Governor Heil and Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman, provided that 25 per cent be paid Dec. 15; 25 per cent on Dec. 30, and similar amounts on the last days of January and February, 1940. It also pledged that aids due Dec. 15, 1940, would be paid on time in full.

Won't Withhold Aids

The governor said the plan did not contemplate withholding any other state aids to local communities.

Mayor D. W. Hoan and Comptroller James Barr, Milwaukee, were among the first to endorse the program, and others accepted it after they had voiced opinions.

MacMillin read a statement saying the league could not agree to any plan but complete payment on Friday, listing more than a half dozen reasons.

"That doesn't get us very far," the governor observed.

In ensuing discussion Heil asserted he would not call a special session to raise additional taxes and wipe out a "predecessor's deficit."

After several suggestions were rejected, the governor proposed the approved program.

Clash Averted

It almost struck a snag when City Manager Henry J. Janesville, proposed that it include a pledge that no other aids would be diverted. He claimed he had found that state administrators could not always be relied upon to keep promises.

"But you never have had experience with a man named Julius P. Heil," the governor declared.

After a short discussion it was agreed it would not be necessary to include the proviso or require the governor or secretary of state to sign a statement embodying the plan.

"This plan is predicated on honesty and fair play," the governor said. "No other state officials ever have gone further than Mr. Zimmerman and I. I am happy that you are being good Samaritans and are helping the state in an emergency."

Hunt for Motorist Who Ran Down and Killed Elderly Chicago Woman

Chicago—(P)—Detectives investigating the death of Mrs. Ricka Thompson, a 64-year-old widow, concluded today that she was deliberately run down and killed by an automobile.

After listening to the stories of three witnesses, Detectives Philip Heil and James Lynch said it appeared that Mrs. Thompson was slain by two or more men whom she tried to stop after they had snatched her purse last night.

The old lady was standing at the mouth of the alley, screaming, "Edmond Hoffman told the officers. His home is at 1623 N. Waukegan avenue, near where the death occurred. The car came toward her at about 10 miles an hour. When she didn't get out of the way the driver put on terrific speed. He hit her. She clung to the bumper until the car got to the east curb. Then she dropped off and the wheels passed over her."

Another witness, Raymond Kent, leaped on the running board of the car, but fell off as it picked up speed. He gave police a good description of the automobile.

Liner Bremen Safe at Dock at Bremerhaven

New York—(P)—The North German Lloyd line officers here said today the liner Bremen which successfully ran the British blockade from Murransk, Russia, had docked safely in Bremerhaven.

The line said the Bremen docked today at noon, German time, and that another liner, the New York, whose position was not definitely known in this country, had reached Hamburg safely. The New York also had been at Murransk.

The 51,731-ton Bremen, delayed here several days before the outbreak of the war while customs agents searched her for contraband, sailed from New York Aug. 30.

More Than 700 Russians are Missing After Steamship Is Wrecked; 395 Persons Saved

Wakkanai, Hokkaido, Japan—(P)—More than 700 Russians, including women and children, were missing today and believed drowned or frozen to death in the wreck of the Russian steamer Indigirka on the treacherous coast of Hokkaido.

The Japanese ship Karaguto Maru arrived here with 385 survivors from the crowded Russian shipwrecked yesterday on the east coast of Hokkaido, northernmost of the Japanese islands.

Survivors, most of whom were suffering from exposure, said the ship carried about 1,100 persons—fishermen, their wives and children, and a crew of 39.

(The scene of the wreck is on one route between fishing stations on Kamchatka peninsula and Vladivostok.)

Survivors said the Indigirka sent out one S O S before huge waves smashed her radio room. Because of the blinding snow she was unable to give her position accurately.

The storm held possible rescue ships in port throughout yesterday. The survivors said they did not know the fate of their missing comrades.

(Russian coastal steamers plying between Vladivostok and ports farther north, especially those having fish canneries, frequently carry passenger lists out of normal proportion to their size. This is especially true when cannery crews are being returned from the north.)

Sheriffs Association Favors Speed Limit

Milwaukee—(P)—The Wisconsin Sheriffs association today favored enactment of a uniform speed limit for highways in the state.

The association will "heartily endorse" any move to establish a limit of 65 or 60 miles an hour, Louis Saicheck, a director of the association, announced after a closed session.

"If any member of the state legislature introduces a bill providing for such a speed limit, he can be assured of the full support of the sheriffs association," Saicheck said.

The only restrictions now in effect on rural roads are those imposed by local boards.

Confesses He Stole Purse With $6,270

Marinette—(P)—Theft of a purse containing $6,270 from an elderly Peshigo widow was admitted here yesterday by a 51-year-old unemployed man.

He told District Attorney Norman B. Langill he snatched the purse from Mrs. Nellis McPherson, 70, as she was about to enter her home last Wednesday night.

Fail to Verify Report of Sea Battle Off Coast of Uruguay

Buenos Aires—(P)—British naval officers said today they were investigating reports that the 7,030-ton British cruiser Achilles had been sunk in a pocket battleship Admiral Scheer but had been unable to obtain any direct information.

They said the report was "just another rumor as far as we are able to learn."

They added that their checkup of all sources mentioned in connection with the battle reports had failed "to produce any sort of confirmation." They hinted that reports of the loss originated in enemy quarters and said similar reports had been "allowed to circulate" previously.

The reports, which circulated here without confirmation, said the battle occurred off Punta del Este, on Uruguay's east coast.

The Achilles sailed Dec. 9 from Montevideo after refueling. She had come to the Atlantic coast recently from a patrol assignment in the Pacific.

The Admiral Scheer began raiding operations in the south Atlantic as early as September. The sinkings or disappearances of several British vessels have been ascribed to her. She is a sister ship of the Deutschland which has been raiding in the north Atlantic.

A report in Montevideo said a private radio station there had intercepted reports of a naval fight 200 miles east of Punta del Este last night and another this morning.

(If the Achilles closed with the Admiral Scheer she would be badly gunned, her main armament being eight 6-inch guns to the German's six 11-inch guns. However, she could outrun the German ship, with a speed of 32.5 knots to 26. Her normal complement is about 550 officers and men.)

Claims 80,000 Miners Forced To Join C.I.O.

Union Leader Tells Problems Group Denied Rights Under Wagner Act TELLS ABOUT RIFT

Says Board Failed to Hand Down Decision Concerning New Union

Washington—(P)—A memorandum from an official of the national labor relations board asserting a C. I. O. leader had told his organizers in the rival Progressive Mine Workers of America "faster than they would shoot a rabbit" was read today in a hearing of the house committee investigating the board.

The memorandum, from Philip G. Phillips, West Virginia regional director, to the board's secretary here, stated that "Van Bitter" had given the shooting advice to his organizers at a labor day meeting in Charleston.

The memorandum gave no identification of "Van Bitter."

Washington—(P)—An A. F. of L. union leader asserted today that 80,000 coal miners had been denied their rights under the Wagner labor act and had been forced against their will to join the C.I.O.

Joe Ozanic, president of the Progressive Miners of the American Federation of Labor, told the house committee investigating the act and the national labor relations board:

"Approximately 80,000 mine workers in various coal fields have been denied their moral and legal rights under the provisions of the national labor relations act to belong to an organization of their own choosing, and these mine workers were, against their desires, being compelled by their employers and by officials of the C.I.O.-U.M.W.A. (United Mine Workers of America) to join and pay dues to the United Mine Workers of America as a condition of their continued employment."

Edmund H. Toland, committee counsel, opened the third day's hearing by reviewing congressional debate on the Wagner act in an effort to show congress intended that the board would not have authority to choose the same bargaining unit for the separated plants of a single company.

Criticizes Policy

William M. Levenson, one of the three board members, had said yesterday that the policy of the other members on this point "doesn't make sense to me." Chairman J. Warren Madden and Edwin S. Smith, member, have in some instances certified all of a company's employees as a single bargaining unit despite their division among several plants.

Edmund H. Toland, committee counsel, opened the third day's hearing by reviewing congressional debate on the Wagner act in an effort to show congress intended that the board would not have authority to choose the same bargaining unit for the separated plants of a single company.

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt re-appointed Norman H. Davis today as chairman of the American Red Cross.

The action, announced at a meeting of the board of incorporators, was praised by Chief Justice Hughes, a Red Cross vice president, who expressed gratification that in a "period of emergency" the Red Cross chairman was "a man whose long experience in international and domestic affairs makes him a statesmanlike leader."

In connection with the meeting it was announced that the organization has reached a new peacetime membership level of 7,047,251.

Three new members were elected to the board of incorporators—Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Dr. Thomas Farran, Jr., surgeon-general, and John L. Lewis, president of the C. I. O.

Chairman Davis, in reporting a membership increase over last year of 1,378,571, or 24 per cent from the November roll call, declared that if overwhelming needs demanded that the American Red Cross make a major campaign for funds, he believed the response of the public would be generous and spontaneous.

"I believe I am safe in saying," Chairman Davis said in connection with Red Cross war relief measures in Europe, "that we have so far met our full share of emergency needs and we are continuing to do so without neglecting our important duties in the field of relief within our own country."

Quinlan Quits as Head Of Neopit Indian Mill

Neopit, Wis.—(P)—John V. Quinlan resigned yesterday as manager of the Neomine Indian mill, effective Jan. 1, and gave as his reason "lack of cooperation" by the tribal council.

Russia Named as Aggressor in War On Finnish People

Moscow Reported Massing 1,500,000 Men in Effort To End Finnish Resistance

League Resolution Implies Demand For Soviet Ouster UP TO ASSEMBLY

Non-Member Nations May Be Asked to Join in Helping Finland

Geneva—(P)—A 13-nation committee of the League of Nations adopted today a resolution condemning Russia as an aggressor and containing an implied demand that Russia be ousted from the league for invading Finland.

The resolution, which was then submitted to the league assembly, which may act on it tonight, incorporated a report drawn up by a subcommittee "inviting" league members to give Finland all possible aid.

In addition it suggested that non-member nations such as the United States might be asked to join in helping Finland if the League of Nations council desires.

The report now goes to a special 13-nation committee considering the Russian-Finnish conflict, before being submitted to the league assembly and then to the council.

Need Unanimous Vote

Approval of the part naming Russia an aggressor and suggesting aid to Finland seemed certain since only a majority vote of the assembly is necessary. Action on expulsion of a member requires a unanimous council vote.

The subcommittee also condemned Russia as a violator of the league covenant and recommended putting the entire technical staff of the league—its economic, health and financial experts—at Finland's disposal.

Rodolfo Freyre, Argentine delegate, told the assembly his government's decision to resign was "unalterable" so long as Russia is a member.

His address was heard after the assembly learned officially of Russia's refusal to accept the league's offer to mediate her war with Finland.

Soviet Reply Read

Karl J. Hambro, of Norway, league assembly president, read a telegram from Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov rejecting the league's proposal to mediate the dispute, then called upon Freyre to make the only address of the morning session.

Freyre concluded with the words: "Acting as an interpreter of my government's unalterable decision, I find it my duty to state with the greatest regret that the Argentine Republic can no longer consider itself a member of the league as long as the Soviet Union is able to claim this title."

Freyre said he considers that "no peace exists" and that "we need to be restrained by a desire to act cautiously and to weigh our responsibilities with the view to the preservation of peace."

Rejection of the league's offer of mediation came last night from Molotov on grounds that Russia was not in a state of war with Finland.

Roosevelt Backs WPA Relief Job Strikes

Washington—(P)—The WPA policy of refusing to recognize strikes by relief workers had fresh support today in an informal opinion of President Roosevelt.

The chief executive, responding to a question at his press conference late yesterday, gave what he called a "horseback opinion" that WPA workers had a right to organize the same way as any other federal employees, but that they could not strike against the government or create a commotion and disturb the peace.

The comment found favor both among WPA officials who have had to contend with WPA strikes and disturbances in Minneapolis and other cities, and officials of the Workers' Alliance, an organization of relief workers.

The question put to the president concerned the situation in Minneapolis where many persons were convicted, after a strike several months ago, for violating a section of the relief act making it unlawful to intimidate or coerce workers to keep them from their jobs.

David Lasser, head of the Workers' Alliance, said he was glad the president restated the opinion given him Monday about the right to organize.

1,100 Will Return to Jobs at Waukesha Plant

Waukesha—(P)—A strike which has kept 1,100 Waukesha Motor company employees idle since Nov. 12 was settled last night when members of the (A. F. of L.) International Machinists union voted 471 to 26 to accept an agreement drawn up by company union representatives.

The strike began after the union sought a contract providing for a union shop, changed timing rules, seniority rights and wage increases. Details of the settlement were not disclosed.

Good Business Seen for U. S. in Coming Year

Cleveland—(P)—Questionnaires from more than 500 business men showed today the overwhelming opinion that good business will continue.

The chamber of commerce questioned executive who yesterday heard Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland economist, make his annual business forecast.

Christmas Spirit Means Giving Help to Those Who are Needy

Achievement of the true Christmas spirit involves more than simply giving gifts to friends and relatives, and receiving gifts from them in return.

The Christmas spirit goes further than that. It is represented most fully when additional sacrifices are made on the part of the economically secure and fortunate people so that the economically insecure and unfortunate people may too enjoy the Yuletide season.

There are Appleton families—and you would be surprised at how many—who can't possibly afford to buy anything "special" in the way of food or gifts at Christmas time. Without the kindness and help of those who can afford these "specials," Christmas to these families would be just another day; in fact, a particularly unhappy one because of the knowledge that while others were literally knee deep in gay wrapping paper, turkey dressing, and nut shells, their homes contained none of this Christmas cheer.

The Good Fellows provide the opportunity for kind-hearted citizens of Appleton to show the real Christmas spirit by contributing toward the happiness of families who either have very low incomes or must exist entirely on the help received from municipal or private charities.

It doesn't involve a great deal of time or money to become a Good Fellow and to have the satisfaction of knowing that you not only did your best for your own family and friends, but also helped provide a merry Christmas for those whose financial difficulties would have made it impossible otherwise.

Every family receiving aid from the Good Fellows is carefully investigated. The specific needs of each family are known before baskets are made up. The Relief and Welfare council acts as the advisory body in distributing the baskets.

2 Mail Robberies Are Solved When Bandit Confesses

Prisoner Admits Participating in Unsuccessful Raid in Illinois

Deville, Ill.—United States District Attorney Arthur Roe announced solution of two middle-western mail robberies after James Arthur Tracy pleaded guilty in federal court today to participating in an unsuccessful raid on a mail train July 31 near Onarga.

Roe said Tracy, a 30-year-old former convict, confessed boarding the train with John F. Waldon, 38, hoping to seize a $50,000 pay roll destined for the army air field at Rantoul. He named Johnny Blackwell as driver of the car in which they planned to make a getaway.

Waldon was captured by mail clerks who frustrated the robbery, and Tracy was picked up in St. Louis early in August. Blackwell is still at large.

The prosecutor said Tracy confessed that he and Waldon seized a mail pouch containing $13,000 in currency at the Belvidere, Ill., post office Nov. 10, 1938.

Heldup Near Beloit

Roe said Tracy also admitted that he, Waldon and Blackwell held up a mail truck near Beloit, Wis., late in 1938. They escaped with six or seven mail pouches, but none of them contained valuables.

Waldon pleaded innocent today to a charge that he participated in the Onarga raid. Sentencing of Tracy was deferred until after the disposition of Waldon's case.

Tracy's confession, which was made public immediately after he entered his plea, told in detail how the attempted robbery at Onarga was planned.

Roe said Tracy told him the robbers made 10 to 12 trips on the Illinois Central train which carried the pay roll before completing their plans.

It was first decided to board the train at Monee, Roe said, but later Onarga was chosen. Tracy and Waldon climbed into the mail car and demanded "the Rantoul money" from the two mail clerks, E. C. Boothman and Guy O'Hern.

One of the clerks pointed to a sack, but when Waldon bent over to pick it up, the clerks put up a fight. As shooting began, Tracy pulled the emergency cord and the train stopped.

He and Waldon jumped from the train, but only Tracy reached the car Blackwell was driving along a road paralleling the tracks.

Roe said Tracy told him he hid in a cornfield the night of July 31, spent the next night in a hotel at Milford, then hitch-hiked to Chicago.

Waldon was shot in the hip and he broke his right leg in leaping from the train. He was picked up by the train crew and turned over to authorities at Champaign.

Records at Joliet state penitentiary showed Tracy served part of a one to twenty year sentence for robbery there in 1934.

Old Trawlers are Sold to France

U. S. Is Assured They Won't Be Used as Minesweepers

Washington—The coast guard released today five old American trawlers sold to the French government, the delivery of which had been delayed pending a determination of legal questions involved.

Although original reports indicated these five, as well as three other trawlers which already have sailed to France, might be used for minesweeping, the French gave official assurance that they would be employed strictly for commercial purposes.

This cleared away legal barriers. The treasury, state and justice department then agreed there was no reason for further delay.

The five ships have been held by the coast guard at Boston, Portsmouth, N. H., Charleston, S. C., and New Orleans. The release order instructed officials at these ports to permit the vessels to sail.

The three trawlers already on the high seas sailed from the Cape Cod canal last Wednesday. When a coast guard officer noticed them steaming out under the French flag and reported the fact to Washington, an investigation was begun about the legality of the sale, while the remaining five were held up.

The legal question arose, not under the new neutrality law but under an old law prohibiting anyone in the United States from furnishing warships to any country at war. This law was designed to prevent the United States from being liable for the same kind of damages that country collected from England after the Civil war because England had furnished raiders to the Confederacy.

Hudson Holds Man for Neillsville Police

Neillsville—John Spang, 25, who police charge led a trail of worthless checks last January while posing as a Racine cattle buyer, was returned from Hudson, Wis., late yesterday to face a preliminary hearing here.

Hudson officers informed local police they had decided not to press charges of parole violation pending against Spang in St. Croix county in view of the more serious charges against him here.

Michigan Governor Designates Sunday As "Finland" Day

Lansing, Mich.—Governor Luren D. Dickinson has designated next Sunday as "Finland Day," and asked the people of Michigan to pray for the safety of non-combatants in Finland.

The governor asked Michigan mayors to issue similar proclamations in their communities, recommended that citizens contribute to a relief fund for Finnish non-combatants, and asked churches to conduct special services.

He noted that former president Herbert Hoover had designated home town newspapers as agencies to accept contributions to relief funds.

"The people of the United States are deeply in sympathy with the Finnish people," the governor said, "in their present distress, reflecting the cordial and friendly relations which have always existed between the governments of Finland and the United States."

Charges 80,000 Miners Forced to Enter C.I.O. Ranks

The United Mine Workers of America. After 22 years in that union, he said he and fellow-miners in the Illinois fields "seceded" because of the U.M.W.A.'s "dictatorial policies" and formed the Progressive Mine Workers of Illinois in 1932.

The new union soon recruited 35,000 of the state's 42,000 miners, he said, and still has them. After the Progressives were granted an international charter by the A. F. of L. in 1938, Ozanic said, it recruited an additional 40,000 workers in coal fields outside Illinois. The latter, however, have been denied recognition by the labor board, he said.

Describing his union's cases before the N.L.R.B., Ozanic said the first involved the Laing mine of the Wyatt Coal company, at Eskdale, W. Va.

Although two-thirds of the 300 workers employed at the mine severed connections with the U.M.W.A., and joined the Progressives, he said, the company refused to recognize the new union.

The case was appealed to the labor board, Ozanic testified, but "the board has not rendered its decision to this day even though the case was filed in 1936."

Told to read into the record a memorandum from Philip G. Phillips, regional director for the board, informing "N. W."—the initials of Nathan Witt, board secretary—that the United Mine Workers took the stand that their contracts with the Wyatt company pre-empted any bargaining by the company with the Progressives.

Tolans said the memorandum was marked "dismissed" and bore the initials "A. R." and "N. W."

In the course of his testimony Ozanic took up the difficulties encountered by his union in organizing employees of the Alston Coal company, Pittsburg, Kans. Although a majority of the employees left the C.I.O.-U.M.W.A. for his A.F. of L.-U.M.W.A. in July, 1938, he said, the company refused to recognize the new group.

Up Before Board

Eventually the case came before the labor board, involving chiefly the issue of an appropriate bargaining unit. The company wanted to bargain as part of an association to which it belonged. The union claimed the labor act did not permit N.L.R.B. certification of an employee unit on such a basis. The board, however, overruled the union and dismissed its petition.

His black eyes flashing, Ozanic accused John L. Lewis, C.I.O. chief, of bringing "pressure" to bear on the Alston company to discharge some of its employees belonging to the Progressives and to ask the labor board to disregard the resulting complaints filed by the Progressives.

The witness testified that the company laid off five employees and subsequently a majority of the workers quit the Progressives and rejoined the U.M.W.A. "to save their jobs."

Recounting efforts to get West Virginia miners into his union and his experiences with the labor board in that connection, Ozanic testified that the board's regional director for West Virginia, Philip G. Phillips, had told him he could expect "all your West Virginia cases to be dismissed without a hearing."

'Christmas Comes Again' New Yule Book at Public Library

A new Christmas book entitled, "Christmas Comes Again" by John N. Then, is available at the Appleton Public Library, according to Mrs. E. Stoddard, library assistant.

The book is divided into three general sections, Christmas legends and stories containing some poetry connected with Christmas; Christmas everywhere, in which the author presents curious and interesting customs in many lands; and Christmas associations, in which the author deals with customs and symbols connected with Christmas.

Also available is the Christmas Manual, a new one edited by Rudolph Haugen. It is entitled "Christmas" and is an American manual of Christmas literature and art. The library has the last five issues.

Others are "Christmas Traditions" by William Auld; "Christmas Tidings" by Auld; "1001 Christmas Facts and Fancies" by Alfred Carl Hoies; and "Uncle Tobey's Christmas books for all the family. The library also has many books containing short poems and recitations.

Popular Plays

Among the most popular plays on the shelves of the public library are: "New Plans for Christmas" and "Plans for Autumn and Winter Holidays" by Sanford; "The Appleton Book of Christmas Plays" and the "Appleton Book of Holiday Plays" by Shay.

Novels and short stories by popular authors are: "Home For Christmas" and "Precious Jeopardy" by Lloyd Douglas; "Christmas and

Reciprocal Trade Program Is Facing Fight in Congress

Extension of Powers Expected to be Among Biggest Issues in 1940

Washington—Extension of the reciprocal trade program, advocated by President Roosevelt, was shaping up today as one of the biggest issues for the 1940 congress.

Shortly after the chief executive told reporters late yesterday that he would ask renewal of the reciprocal trade act, which expires June 12, Senate Minority Leader McNary (R-Ore.) predicted its overwhelming defeat.

"A great many Democrats and practically all Republicans will oppose the extensions," said McNary. "At the present time, I am satisfied that there is a substantial majority in the senate against the program."

Senator Johnson (D-Colo.), informed of the president's announcement, commented:

"We'll be ready for that, I hope."

Johnson was one of several westerners, including Senators Borah (Idaho), Pittman (D-Nev.), Wheeler (D-Mont.) and Clark (Idaho) who have come out against continuance of the trade treaties.

The president said yesterday that the trade program, inaugurated by Secretary of State Hull, had met with success in increasing American exports. He expressed the opinion it should be continued in an effort to reach potential foreign markets offering opportunities for increased sales of American goods.

Many of the foes, however, have said they opposed the program on the ground that it has permitted an increase in agricultural imports while this country faced crop surpluses.

Religious Float To Make Appearance On Avenue Saturday

The religious float, sponsored by the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, will make its first appearance in Appleton at 7:30 Saturday night. The float will carry a replica of the scene at the birth of Jesus Christ and will travel on College avenue from Richmond street to Green Bay street.

The Christmas rollers, who will follow the float, will begin singing on Appleton streets Monday night. The routes for the singers are being arranged by aldermen in the various wards and will be announced later.

Pupils Learn How to Take Care of Babies church at Muola. Almost a constant series of attacks were repulsed, the enemy suffering tremendous losses. We destroyed many tanks and left hundreds of the fallen enemy lying before our positions.

"Severe fighting occurred also at the eastern front, particularly at Tolvaarvi, and cost the Russians a severe defeat. Three enemy battalions were destroyed. We captured 27 machine-guns, 25 express rifles, 13 machine-pistols and other materiel and, in addition, destroyed several tanks.

Attacks Repulsed

"Near Iimola, the enemy launched several attacks under the cover of artillery fire. The attacks were repulsed. Elsewhere on the eastern front, heavy battles continued."

The communique added that the Finnish air force, recently strengthened by British and Italian-made planes—"made numerous reconnaissance flights and bombed and gunned enemy columns and supply bases at many points."

Finnish officials, meanwhile, awaited complete reports on the sinking of a German freighter by a submarine in the Gulf of Bothnia.

Several of 23 survivors from the ship, identified as the 2,217-ton Bollhem, declared upon reaching the Finnish port of Mantsylo yesterday that the attacker was a Russian undersea craft.

The captain, second officer and radio operator were killed when the submarine fired 15 shells into the vessel.

1940 Tax Rate at Bear Creek Set at $27.50 Per $1,000

Bear Creek—A tax rate of $27.50 per $1,000, a decrease of $2.50 from this year, was adopted for 1940 by the Bear Creek village board at a recent meeting. The reduction is due to a drop in county taxes and also operating costs of the village. The school appropriation and state trust fund loan on the new gymnasium are about the same as this year's figures.

While the village spent about $900 in the last year for black top paving of streets in the village, there will be a cash net balance in the village treasury of about $1,500 at the end of the fiscal year.

A breakdown of the $6,237.50 levy shows state tax $55.46, county tax $1,520.85, operating levy $2,798.68, loan $790.88 and village general levy $1,071.74.

Settlement Project Is Granted Charter

Albany, N. Y.—(P)—New York's secretary of state has granted a charter to the Dominican Republic Settlement association, Inc., a non-profit project which on a sponsor said hopes to settle 100,000 refugees, Jewish and non-Jewish, in the Dominican Republic.

George L. Warren, executive secretary of the president's advisory committee on political refugees, said the plan was made possible by the offer of governmental concessions and guarantees from former President Rafael Trujillo, of the Dominican Republic, and Dr. Andres Pastoriza, its minister in Washington.

Man Held for Posing As FBI Special Agent

Pittsburgh—Edward F. Sullivan, who said he was publisher executive director of the Ukrainian-American Educational Institute, was held today for a further hearing by a United States commissioner on charges of "falsely assuming himself to be a special agent of the federal bureau of investigation."

An FBI agent testified yesterday Sullivan, formerly of Boston, represented himself to a Pennsylvania railroad executive as a special FBI agent and sought information concerning an employee he said was active in Communist party work.

The FBI agent said Sullivan told him that he had been combating Communism for several years and from June until October, 1938, served as an investigator for the Dies committee on un-American activities. Last June, Sullivan filed a complaint against a Communist party member here charging him with distributing defamatory handbills.

Man Is Arraigned on Embezzlement Charge

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—A man who gave his name and address as Nolan Ryan, 52, Appleton, was arraigned before Judge S. J. Luchsing in municipal court this morning charged with embezzling $144 from Floyd Acheson, who operates a bulk oil station in the town of Menasha. A bond of $500 was posted and trial was set for Wednesday, Dec. 27. Acheson, who signed the complaint, said Ryan took the money between July 11 and Dec. 17, 1938, when he was employed as a bookkeeper.

Youths May Register For Enrolment in CCC

Registrations for the next CCC enrolment are being taken at the Outagamie County Public Welfare department in the Odd Fellows building, according to William Farnum, director. The next enrolment will be taken between Jan. 1 and 15 and the county's quota has not yet been determined. About nine applications already have been received.

on ability to pay. The deficit can be met by revision of the income and inheritance taxes. We are definitely opposed to a general sales tax because such taxes fall most heavily on those least able to pay."

"We urge that the governor immediately convene the interim committee on taxation appointed on Oct. 6 by the 1930 legislature. We can stand prepared to make suggestions relative to the raising of sufficient funds to meet the state deficit if this committee is called into session."

"We further believe that shortly after the interim committee meets, a special session of the legislature should be convened."

Handley said the state faces a $17,000,000 shortage during the biennium, with budget expenditures of $75,000,000 exceeding estimated receipts of $58,000,000. Deferred payment of aid to exhaustion of $9,000,000 general fund balance and diversion of $4,000,000 of highway funds still would leave a deficit of more than $1,000,000 in June, 1941, Handley said the budget director and the governor's financial secretary had estimated.

League of Nations Facing Crisis as Argentina Asks Expulsion of Soviet Union

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(P)—Moscow—having rejected the offer of mediation in the Russo-Finnish war, the League of Nations has on its hands a grave problem in the Argentine motion for expulsion of the Soviet union.

There is danger in it both from the standpoint of the European war crisis and from that of the league itself.

Rodolfo Freyre, of the Argentine, in urging expulsion, declared the league was "faced with an issue of life or death." It could throw Russia out, or "resign its function in the spirit of truly suicidal defeat."

This conjured up a picture of the league's magnificent market place on the banks of Lake Geneva being transformed into the highest-priced mausoleum of history.

It is a tough spot, since the league will be damned if it does, and damned if it doesn't. It will lose at least one important member whichever way the voting goes, since the Argentine has said it will resign if the motion is defeated.

Would Be First Time

Should the league expel Russia (and that isn't one of those things we assume in advance) it will be the first time such drastic action has been taken against any country.

In 1935 the league applied sanctions to Italy as aggressor against Ethiopia, though less than three years later the league council gave members permission to recognize Mussolini's annexation of the African kingdom. Again in 1937 the league condemned Japan on a charge of bombing open towns in China.

Expulsion, however, would be a terrible punishment which would brand the accused as an outcast in the eyes of the other member nations.

The reaction on the outlaw certainly would be one of bitterness and possibly of violence. World condemnation means the same to a nation as does community condemnation to the individual.

Two days ago I suggested that the expulsion of Russia might even have the ultimate effect of drawing the Soviet union into the Hitlerian war on the side of Germany. Russian circles in Geneva yesterday intimated that expulsion might mean Moscow would sever diplomatic relations with Britain and France, unless the allies took that action first. At the same time, diplomatic quarters had reports that if Russia were expelled France would break off relations and close the Soviet embassy in Paris.

One always uses a fair amount of salt on such reports with the knowledge that a certain amount of propaganda may be mixed up in them. However, the fact that they were circulating in responsible quarters does tend to indicate the gravity and delicacy of the situation.

British Siege 7,000 Tons of Contraband

London—(P)—The British contraband control today announced that 7,000 tons of goods suspected of being destined for Germany were intercepted by the British in the week ended Dec. 9.

Sixty-one neutral ships, including 10 American craft, were being held in contraband bases yesterday. A total of 483,500 tons of goods has been detained in the first 14 weeks of the war.

Looks Like a Dry New Year's Eve for Michigan Residents

Lansing, Mich.—(P)—There will be no champagne of New Year's morning drinking here if Governor Dickinson has his way.

The state liquor control commission said yesterday it was considering permitting public drinking from midnight on New Year's eve until 4 a. m., to compensate for New Year's eve falling on Sunday this year. State law forbids liquor sales, until midnight Sunday.

They both closed at 2 a. m. as usual," Dickinson said. "I mean they'll get enough to drink if they don't have those extra two hours. They'll have to drink faster, that's all."

Average Voter Says Party in Power Counts for Little in Keeping Nation Out of War

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J. — Which party is more likely to keep the United States out of war—the Republicans or the Democrats? With some G.O.P. leaders attempting since the war to establish the Republican Party as the "peace" party, this question takes on special significance as the 1940 political campaign approaches. To find the attitude of voters throughout the country, the American Institute of Public Opinion has conducted a survey among a representative sample, or cross-section, of the population.

The results show that Republican efforts to date have apparently not succeeded in convincing voters that the G.O.P. is any more peace-minded than the Democratic party.

In fact a slightly larger percentage of voters think the Democratic party is more likely to keep us out of war than the Republican party. The largest group of voters polled, however, say they think it makes no difference what party is in power.

The issue put before the cross-section of voters in the survey was as follows:

"Which political party do you think is more likely to keep us out of war—the Republicans or the Democrats?"

Republicans More Likely ... 21%
Democrats More Likely ... 28%
Makes No Difference ... 51%

Approximately one voter in every seven (14 per cent) expressed no opinion on the issue.

If the present attitude continues, if no one group is identified in the public mind as more of a "peace" party than any other group, one result may be the removal of the peace issue from among the leading controversies of the political campaign.

Especially interesting is the vote by political parties in the survey. Despite attempts by some Republicans to attach the peace label to their party, about half of Republican rank and file voters say they think peace does not depend on the party in power. Most of the other half, however, think peace is more assured under the Republicans, while an equal number of Democrats think peace is more certain under the Democrats.

The party vote follows:

Repub. Demo. No Diff.

Democratic	Voters Say 5%	48%	57%
Republican	Voters say 42%	3	45%

Voters who think the G.O.P. is more likely to keep us out of war argue, chiefly, that "it was the Democrats who took us into the last war."

Those who, on the other hand, place greater faith in the Democratic party declare that the foreign policy of the present Democratic administration is better than anything yet proposed by the Republicans.

The rest of the voters argue, however, that "parties and politics have

American Waters Safe for Ships, Lawrence States

Submarines Have Never Been on This Side Of Atlantic

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — American inter-coastal waters have been absolutely cleared of any evidence of war. There are no submarines and, so far as known, never have been any on this side of the Atlantic. And there are no floating mines.

These facts have been ascertained from reliable sources here in answer to inquiries which for some fantastic reason have assumed that the European war extends all over the world.

The truth is that German submarines are much more needed in European waters, where they can fire away at belligerent ships as they approach British and French ports, than they are in roaming the oceans.

The Berlin naval command has not sent any vessels to the North or South American coasts and is not interested in starting any controversies with Pan-American countries, especially the United States.

Admiral Land, chairman of the National Maritime commission, has authorized this comment: "The American flag is the greatest protection that exists in the world today. Let's stop this hysteria regarding submarine scares, raider scares, pocket battleship scares. The waters of the western hemisphere for ships under the American flag are safe and will be safe."

As a matter of fact, trade with Latin America has increased perceptibly in the last few weeks since war in Europe began. The United States is selling more goods to Central and South America because European exporters cannot supply the shipping on the products owing to war conditions. The South American countries, on the other hand, are finding it increasingly difficult to sell their products to Europe, and they cannot, of course, increase their sales to the United States because of traffic barriers. The difficulties of financing foreign exchange in these troublous times have given rise to plans for the establishment of a central bank of settlements which will handle exchange problems for North and South American countries. The idea is in the embryo stage, but something of the kind may be set up soon, and if it is, then permanent effects may be expected therefrom.

Indeed, the war will leave a definite impression on the whole character and volume of trade between the United States and Latin America, because once customer relationships are built up in war time, they are apt to be maintained when peace comes, especially since the high quality of American merchandise is bound to become a factor in the sales.

Thus, in the matter of heavier goods, particularly steel, the Latin Americans are finding that the German steel, for which they paid low prices, is expanding up in the machinery purchased, and that equipment bought from the United States is demonstrating its superiority every day in actual use.

It is too early yet to gauge the full effect of the war on Latin-American relations with the United States, but no doubt there will be a perceptible increase in tourist trade. This is because many of the travelers and particularly the thousands who take winter cruises will want to see South America this time and avoid the hazards of European waters. American steamship lines, many of which have government subsidies, have perfected a service that is the equal of anything in the trans-Atlantic trade, and these lines have a capacity to handle a huge volume of passenger traffic. Latin-Americans who usually go

Sunday School Plans To Present Pageant At Church at Leeman

Leeman — A sacred pageant, "The Star Lighted Path," will be presented the evening of Dec. 24 at the Church of Christ by members of the Sunday school.

Those who are taking part in the pageant are Elaine Greely, Ardys Ames, Glenace Ames, Louise Schinke, Carolyn Hintz, Raymond Hintz, Ronald Mortell, Delyle Beyer, Elma Planert, Mrs. Joyce Palmer, Mrs. Leroy Thede, Virginia Schinski, Ardys Attos, Emil Schinski and Mrs. Richard Nelson, with selections given by the adult and children's choir.

The Sunday School will hold a Christmas party Saturday evening, Dec. 23, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Ames in Shiocton, when the gifts and candy will be presented.

A number of local residents attended Evangelistic services conducted at the Bethesda church at Navarino Sunday by the Rev. Joseph Atteson, a missionary of India.

Mrs. Fred Falk and Mrs. Nels Nelson returned home Sunday evening from a weekend visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Konitzer at Oconto Falls.

The Misses Esther Olson and Elaine Greely, who are employed at Green Bay, spent the weekend at the homes of their parents here.

Mrs. Agnes Southard and son Joseph were weekend visitors with relatives and friends in New London and Appleton, visiting the former's great grand son who was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ward Werth in Appleton last week.

Mrs. Richard Riehl of Center Valley is spending several days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Gunderson.

Miss June Gunderson has gone to Appleton where she is employed.

Church Brotherhood Planning Father-Son Banquet at Chilton

Chilton — The Men's Brotherhood of the Ebenezer Reformed church met at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the church parlors. It was a "father and son" meeting and each member brought a boy along.

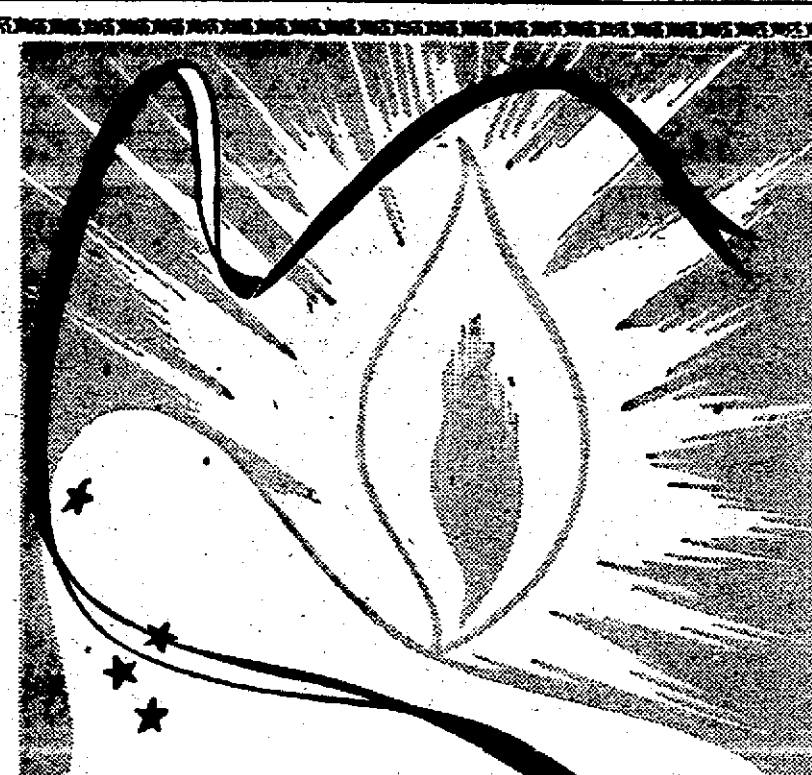

Karl Haugen, Appleton, spoke on "A Trip to the Arctic," and presented several reels of motion pictures taken on the trip. Christian Mothers of St. Augustine's church at Chilton held a reception for new members into the organization on Friday. The Rev. Henry Vande Castle received the following new members: Mmes. Lorin Schumacher, Perry Flaherty, Della Wodsedalek, Jay Hephner, William Reiser, Edwin Meyers, William McGrath, Daniel Skahan and Michael Mand.

Mrs. John J. Minahan was elected president and Mrs. Claude Mullenbach was re-elected secretary and treasurer for the ensuing year. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. J. J. McHale and Mrs. F. F. Schlosser, retiring president and secretary-treasurer.

to Europe for vacations are coming to the United States in large numbers. This form of "invisible exchange," as it has often been called, adds to the total volume of trade between countries just as if products had been exchanged. The more tourist traffic there is, the more opportunity there is for the peoples of the two countries to learn export and import trade. On the whole, the Latin-American trade picture is brighter than it has been in years and the chances of a better understanding between the North and South American peoples will be one of the most important by-products of the war.

FINLAND TEACHES US SOMETHING OF WAR

But recently we would not have thought our Country would be subsidizing one of the Nations at war. And yet the President's approval of a $10,000,000 credit to the Finns is bound to meet a warm approval. For America admires the Finns, a gallant and heroic people, willing to die like our Revolutionary sires for the right to live their own lives.

But it is appropriate, as our blood begins to boil and the war fever in America starts to spread, to return to the sessions of the Senate but a few years ago when our sincere representatives in Congress sought to coin a law that would keep America from becoming embroiled in European conflicts.

We were told with hot eagerness that munition makers and international bankers caused wars. The Post-Crescent denied these assertions, and insisted that, in a large measure, people themselves caused wars, and that munition makers and international bankers were bogeys trotted out by a heart-sick people, or their representatives, when they wanted to hide their own culpability by passing the blame on to someone else.

Take a look at the world now. Half of it is aflame. Do you see any munition makers or any international bankers prodding on Russia or Japan? Do you see any in Spain or Germany? Are there some down in Rumania egging the people of that country to resistance? Do you expect there are any in Helsinki advising the Finns to fight it out?

We do not pretend that anyone can put his finger upon a certain cause of war to the exclusion of all other causes. That would be as misleading as designation of munition makers and international bankers. But we do emphasize that the principal cause of war is peoples' passions. People must become angered and willing to march before wars ensue.

That is why Russia and Germany fallacy to their people. And that is why they will not permit a free press or free speech, since, if they did, both sides of a controversy might be presented, and the people would be prevented from becoming infuriated at the highly partisan and colored statements issued by their masters or tyrants.

The people of America now know they may quote Adolf Hitler with assurance when he said that Russia was ruled by the lowest scum on the face of the earth. And to see that scum, dominated by Mongols, moving against the sturdy, honest and industrious Finns is enough to make eyes a bit bloodshot. Thus does a war feeling creep stealthily and gradually over the American people.

The very hideousness of this attack upon Finland is starting the same sort of slow but deep anger that culminated in our declaration of war in 1917. For the willingness of people to go upon the battle field constitutes the greatest single cause of war.

THE YULE BACK-LOG

Many signs tell of the approach of Christmas—the tinsel and the fascinating displays beginning to appear in the store windows; the showing of fancy greeting cards; the gift suggestions in the newspaper advertisements; the appeal from the postoffice to mail early; the sudden angelic conduct of even the most impish youngsters in the neighborhood.

These are the outward signs. There are others not so easily seen. In fact, one may have to look twice or think twice before becoming aware of them.

Yet, these are the most important. They can be found in the fire stations, schools and other places where broken toys are being mended and painted to be given again; in the Salvation Army kettles on the sidewalk; in the gathering of people from all walks into a great variety of religious, civic and fraternal organizations to plan the raising of funds that the "100 neediest families" will not be forgotten.

These activities are not confined to any one place but are underway in the great cities, in the little towns, from one end of the country to the other. These are the efforts of a host of workers who do their good deeds under many titles but who can be grouped under the great name of Good Fellows.

While the outward brilliance of the Yuletide season is beautiful to see and altogether fitting, it is the Good Fellows who lay in the backlog that makes the Christmas fire of good cheer glow warmly.

AN INDUSTRY GOES FORWARD

Not until we are reminded of them do we sometimes realize and recognize the economic changes which are slowly being wrought near us and around us. It is thus with the development of the premier Wisconsin dairy industry, which, the department of agriculture reminds us, in a statistical yearbook just issued, has moved several long paces forward in recent years.

It is encouraging to read the evidence of improvements and advances made in the dairy field in the last two decades. New and successful commercial establishments have been built in this and other sections of the state on dairy by-products which were not yet discovered or utilized twenty years ago.

Prior to the World War period the dairy industry was confined almost exclusively to the production of butter, cheese and condensed whole milk products. Skim milk, buttermilk, and whey had relatively little value, were scarcely considered useful in dairy plants, and were generally returned to the farm to be fed to livestock or disposed of as waste.

Since that time we have learned much. We have recognized the nutritional value of the by-products of milk, the important industrial uses available for such materials as were earlier considered of no value, and the result has been to effect wide and significant changes in the economics of dairying. Each year we appreciate more fully the importance of such subsidiary manufactures as casein and dried or powdered skim milk. While Wisconsin made only a few million pounds of powdered skim milk in 1920, the state today produces several billion pounds yearly and the total is steadily increasing.

Thus is the earning power of the state's most essential economic enterprise being strengthened, and thus do we all, citizens of Wisconsin, gain accordingly. Dairy businessmen are adopting new methods, developing and exploiting new markets for the most important Wisconsin crop.

The businessmen on Wisconsin farms and in its dairy plants must stay in the parade to survive, at least to prosper. The most successful of them are a few steps ahead of the crowd. The timely and successful expansion in dairying here in the last generation is an encouraging note. It is a sign that its leaders are aware of its opportunities, conscious of the requirements to meet the competition which is growing stronger elsewhere in this country.

Today they have before them a chance to exploit another opportunity with profit to themselves and the state. They have been shown that the people of Wisconsin and of the nation at large will buy Wisconsin cheese in greater quantities than they have been accustomed to buying it, if it is merchandised in modern form. Today the demand for Christmas packages of Wisconsin natural cheese is greater than the supply. It is a lesson which the cheese men must take to heart. It is a demand for action, a signal to grasp a chance which is of paramount importance to the whole state.

THEIR OWN DEBUNKERS

The blatant mouthings of the communists and nazis have often tempted Americans to forget the privileges of free speech and demand that these jackals of alienism be gagged and kicked out of the country. Once again, however, the wisdom of democratic principles is being demonstrated and by the very ones who would destroy them.

The communists and the nazis in this country have had full opportunity to screech their outrageous lies and go through their ridiculous gymnastics of illogic by which they sought to convince Americans that nazism or communism offer a better life than democracy. They have been given full rope and now they are doing a good job of hanging themselves.

That Fritz Kuhn, the "fuhrer" of the nazis in this country is in Sing Sing prison because he is a forger and a thief and that officials of the American communist party are under indictment on charges of passport frauds are incidental to the bigger show that nazism and communism are giving. In Germany, nazism has shown that it can lead a people into starvation. In Russia, communism has shown rare skill in mass murder, treachery and cruelty.

In this country, a little more than a year ago, the communists were cursing Chamberlain for not going to the aid of Czechoslovakia. Yet they had little to say about the plunder of Poland because by then Stalin and Hitler had made their deal and Russia was sharing in the spoils. Now they are trying to justify Stalin's murderous and unprovoked attack on little Finland. The nazis once paraded themselves as defenders of American democracy against communism, but had to do a somersault when nazism and communism suddenly became bedfellows. Now they are finding it difficult to stomach Russia's expansion, not because they are filled with compassion for the Finns or Rumanians, but because the red menace threatens nazi influence.

How could any sane person make any sense out of all of that? How could any intelligent person believe anything that either a communist or a nazi says? How could any patriotic American want to be in the same room with any of them, or even go into a room where they had been, until after it had been fumigated thoroughly?

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York — At the age of 50, Elsie Bierbower has started upon a new career, and started with a bang.

If your memory goes back to "The Belle of New York," you remember Miss Bierbower. It was her first starring vehicle. "The Belle of the Slipper," was another, and in that gay musical she co-starred with Montgomery and Stone. Afterward came many successes, then vaudeville, then the War with Elsie Bierbower giving without stint of her talents as an entertainer behind the lines in France.

Never, however, in a 40-year-stage career did this charming lady of mimicry set foot on a night club floor until a fortnight ago. It was Thanksgiving Week. She stepped out among the tables of the Versailles, nervous and frightened, — she who had played before probably as many people as any living performer. She went into her impersonations of Coburn, Brice, the Barrymores, and finally Will Rogers, chewing gum, lariat and all. When she was finished the photo-murals of the Versailles rocked with applause that was both spontaneous and long.

Some of us who remembered her from long ago — back even to "The Vanderbilt Cup" — had dew in our eyes — dew of happiness that after all these years the genius for spreading joy still flourished in the gay person of Elsie Bierbower Janis.

Down in Greenwich Village, in a night club strangely called Cafe Society, a new type of music has been slowly pushing its way into favor. They call it "Calypso," the topical songs of Trinidad. Calypso is defined as "a strong, rhythmic, soul-searing melody, with a definite tinge of the weird, throbbing, pulsation of the African jungle" — bearing about the same relation to Trinidad as Negro spirituals do to America.

As far as I know, the only authentic Calypsonian in New York is Wilmoth Houdini, Brooklyn born but a Trinidad resident from the age of one year. Calypsos are played occasionally at other places in New York but it is Houdini and his band at Cafe Society who have centered interest upon this new form of music.

Some people think Calypsos mark the next transition in American popular music taste, succeeding Swing, though it seems unlikely because Calypsos, although barbarically rhythmic, are essentially dependent upon the lyrics. They are not primarily melodic. Instead of being "words and music" they are "words and rhythm."

An excellent idea of Calypso is given in an album of recordings by Houdini. The Calypso is essentially an improvised song about whatever the singer happens to be thinking at the moment — politics, current events, domestic life, governmental officials, anything. For instance, there is one Calypso recording called "Roosevelt Opens World Fair," which begins like this:

"Millions gather to see the World's Fair of New York City,
Millions gather to see the Progress of the Twentieth Century,
The President, Mayor and Governor,
Welcome sixty nations to America,
Hoping that peace, contentment and prosperity
Will last to Eternity."

This may not read like rhyme, but somehow in the singing the Calypsonians give an impression of rhyming by their accenting.

Another Calypso is "Hot Dogs Made Their Name," which has to do with the sandwiches served by Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt to their Britannic majesties at Hyde Park last summer.

One verse goes:

"King George did not use his knife and fork,
He said I will do nothing of the sort,
So he held hot dog in his hand,
And faced hot dog man to man."

Then there is another song that tells how "Johnny Takes My Wife," each verse of which finishes with these words:

"Whenever I meet Johnny
People will be sorry to see
The grave for Johnny and the gallows for me."
Which gives you an idea—or does it?—of Calypsos.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, Dec. 11, 1929

Plans for a public celebration to mark the dedication of Appleton's new electric street lighting system on the evening of Dec. 18 were discussed at a meeting of the retail division of the chamber of commerce Tuesday morning.

Louis Jeske, Outagamie county game warden, that week completed a survey of the county and made a report to the state conservation commission on the wild life which would need feed that winter.

Mrs. Adele Even was reelected president of the J. T. Reeve circle, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, during a meeting at Odd Fellows hall Tuesday night. Mrs. Hattie Rumpf was named senior vice president; Mrs. Ida Ashman, treasurer; Mrs. Flora Williams, chaplain; Miss Anna Sullivan, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Agnes Dean, conductress; Miss Rennie Struck, guard, and Mrs. Evangeline Farwell, musician.

25 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, Dec. 10, 1914

Attorney A. H. Krueger, that morning announced his candidacy for circuit judge. Judge John Goodland's term was to expire the following April.

The Messiah was to become an annual Christmas season event in Appleton, according to a statement made the previous night by Dr. W. S. Naylor during a short intermission in the presentation of the famous oratorio given by the Philharmonic club at the Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wing entertained at their home in honor of Mr. and Mrs. P. Lindsey of Spokane, Wash., the previous Monday evening.

The W.C.T.U. was to meet with Mr. W. Ellison at her home, 744 N. Oneida street, Thursday afternoon.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

WINTER LEAVES

A few leaves cling
To the ancient tree,
Though the far-off spring
Is a memory.

The winter snow
Is on the bough,
The red leaves glow
With more splendor now;

For a few stray leaves
On a winter day,
When the north wind grieves
With the birds away

Mean more to a tree
(As to a heart!)
Than the leaves we see
When the warm rains start.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The Maritime commission still is disgruntled over the State department action in snowing under the plan to let jobless ships transfer to foreign flags where they could continue to do business without neutrality law restraint.

A fleet of nine freighters of the United States lines had all but completed the transfer to Panama registry when, bango, Secretary Hull attacked it as an unmoral evasion of the neutrality act.

The reason the Maritime commission—unofficially, of course—was so annoyed was the realization that most American-owned ships engaged in foreign commerce already are operating under foreign registry.

When the neutrality act went into effect there were approximately 300 vessels operating under American registry. At the same time there were 434 American-owned ships under foreign flags. This included 183 owned outright by American corporations, and 271 owned by foreign corporations which in turn were wholly owned by American companies, such as the Panama Transportation company, owned by Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Some Can Go, Some Not
Not all these Yankee-owned foreign flag ships sail into the forbidden zones. All of them can, however, while those Yankee ships confined to American flag registry have to stick around in the safer zones of the Pacific or western hemisphere where freight pickings are thinner.

Breeding about the Maritime commission offices, you get the impression that they think Secretary Hull and certain administration cohorts got mad at the proposed transfer because they feared the political reaction, and not because of any high-flung moral reasons.

But, perhaps, it won't matter. If the worst comes to the worst for the allies, they can always come over and buy freight ships now rusting idly at their anchor chains. There is no law against selling the ships to belligerents, so long as they don't mount guns.

Parc As The Snow
But enough of sea-going stuff. We take you now to the Civil Service commission where an examiner tells a story of a young woman taking a stenographic test. It in a dither she came up to the examiner's desk to ask:

"Do I have to answer all the questions, every one?"

"Of course," said the examiner. The lassie went back to her chair, chewed her finger nails in evident embarrassment, then hastily wrote a word and threw her paper on the examiner's desk, as she dashed outside.

Fuzzled over her embarrassment, the examiner opened her paper. She had given her name, address, age and all the usual items, but when she came to fill out the blank after the word "Sex" she penned: "Never."

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

It just don't seem possible that Doug Fairbanks is dead. He was just about the most alive person the country seemed to have. It was only a few years ago that Hollywood depended almost exclusively on Doug any time it wanted to give the cinema-fans a picture of vitality plus.

He could outdo, outjump, outfight and outlast everybody else in the scenario. They never gave Doug a picture that wasn't really an endurance test. In the days before the talkies, a movie had to have plenty of action, and Fairbanks was top man when it came to that. These modern screen idols, stacked up against Doug's performances, seem like studies in slow motion.

You knew when you saw Doug in a picture that the villains would be all out of breath before the chase really began. He even kept the audience out of breath.

The League of Nations did the trick of the year. It found its spine. The discovery came pretty late and it may not mean anything beyond an experiment in anatomical research, but it was cheering.

The British must have taken a pledge to see that nothing happens to the Bremen. She gets around more safely than if the British were operating her.

Frey Favors Dismissal Of Over 100 Employees

Madison —(7)—August Frey, director of the division of departmental research, disclosed Tuesday he had recommended dismissal of "more than 100 employees" of the highway department.

The proposal, he said, was contained in a report he submitted to Governor Hall following a month's investigation of the department. He added that he would meet with Highway Commissioner William B. O'Brien later this week, and expected O'Brien would cooperate in making the play feasible.

Ninety-five employees of the motor vehicle department were laid off in November on Frey's recommendations.

Until he met with O'Brien, Frey said he would be unable to reveal further details.

RIDE 'EM AND YOU CAN HAVE HIM

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—One of the characteristics often betrayed by Gov. Heil and some of his principal associates which has often led them into embarrassing corners is an impetuosity, a habit of making public statements without a full realization of the possible consequences.

A good current example is the sudden announcement by August Frey of the research bureau that every person on the state payroll will be photographed for identification purposes. The reason for the order was vaguely explained by Mr. Frey. He was quoted in some quarters as saying that "sometimes we don't know whether they're Adam or Eve."

MUCH BALKING
Such an order promptly set the whole capital talking. Local newspapermen gathered opinions from leading state officials, professors, judges, and constitutional officers on the suggestion. They were uniformly hostile. It was quickly pointed out that the order by Frey, who was chosen to point the way to economy, will mean the expenditure of approximately $10,000 in state funds. Such a cold reception did the photograph order meet, that there is wonderment today whether it will actually be put into effect. Meanwhile wags amuse themselves by speculating on the spectacle of members of the state supreme court, college deans, and other leading capital figures parading before the photographer to have their pictures taken for Mr. Frey's files.

DEWEY SLATE
There is a good deal of curiosity being expressed in political circles on the membership of the Dewey delegate slate which was released from Minneapolis last week after Dewey's maiden speech. Some close observers, pointing to the later announcement of the slate-makers that the list is only "tentative" freely predict that it will change considerably before the spring campaign actually gets underway.

It is somewhat unorthodox, say some capital Republicans, for the Dewey backers to give a leading place on their list to men who are not acknowledged to be "regulars" in the party, such men as Senator Bennie Getteman of Milwaukee, who voted against the Heil administration more frequently than he supported it during the last session of the legislature, and Secretary of the Fred R. Zimmerman, who only a few years ago was running for office as a Progressive and now is grabbing every chance in sight to embarrass the Republicans in the executive office.

CORY DROPPED
Jack Cory, well-known in newspaper offices throughout the state for his work in the highway safety division of the state highway commission during the last three years, was one of the state employees in the last batch dismissed from Major Rickman's motor vehicle division.

Cory, who formerly edited the Rhinelander News, will probably run a rural weekly in northern Wisconsin his friends report.

CATLIN DISSENT
Mark Catlin, Sr., Appleton member of the state conservation commission, is going to do some dissenting on that body during the next few months, it appears. After considerable traveling in all parts of the state and personal examination of state conservation policies and projects, the veteran Appleton sportsman has drawn some conclusions.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

POTASSIUM FOR ALLERGY

Insufficient intake or faulty assimilation and utilization of calcium (lime) is a contributing cause of numerous common ailments classified by physicians as allergic. Among these ailments are hay fever, asthma, recurring hives (urticaria) and giant hives (angioneurotic edema), hyperesthetic rhinitis (sudden stuffiness and watering of the nose which clears up after minutes or hours as inexplicably as it began), some cases of periodic sick headache (migraine), some cases of ordinary headache (neuragic or "nervous" headache) and many cases of eczema (salt rheum, tetter).

One function of calcium is to control or check cell irritability and undue permeability of the capillary channels or spaces.

An adequate intake of sunshine vitamin D is essential for normal assimilation, utilization and retention of calcium. For this reason it is generally advisable to administer vitamin D when calcium is given in medical form.

I have a monograph on Daily Requirement of Calcium, Calcium Feeding. Vitamins. Everybody Needs—for copy send stamped envelope bearing your address.

Recall that many sufferers from the various allergic conditions mentioned have found potassium remarkably beneficial. Five or ten grains of potassium chloride taken dissolved in a glassful of water twice daily for several days will bring much relief; in some instances a single dose of five or ten grains—always taken dissolved in plenty of water, never swallowed as powder or tablet—gives relief.

There is practically no objection to such use of potassium chloride, and if necessary it may be taken for four or five days or a week at a time, with a rest then until it may be needed again. If it brings no relief in four or five days it is useless to take any more.

Potassium acts pharmacologically like epinephrine (adrenaline)—in fact some physiologists believe the effects of epinephrine (adrenaline) are actually the effects produced by potassium mobilization which epinephrine causes.

Readers report that druggists inform them there is no such medicine as potassium chloride. I must mean potassium chlorate (which I do not mean), or that it can be sold only on prescription, or that it is poisonous—all incorrect.

It is almost as harmless as sodium chloride (common table salt). Five grains dissolved in a glassful of water is nearly tasteless. Ten grains in a glassful of water tastes salty. It is difficult to produce a soluble tablet, but it can be done and may be obtained in this form—I just dissolved one and tasted the solution, so I know.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Hernia plus Diets
Last April you recommended Dr. ... for treatment of hernia. I had the hernia twenty years. While taking treatment it was discovered I had also mild diabetes. Wish to state Dr. ... has cured my hernia and cleared up the diabetes. I am grateful to you for recommending him. (N.B.)

Answer—Thank you. Makes me feel as happy as you. I have been my patient. The ambulant (injection) treatment of hernia which does not interfere with the patient's regular work is now giving the radical operation a serious set-back—which is a good thing for the public, a good thing for surgery between you and me and the lamp.

sions which are likely to furnish warm debate at commission meetings later this winter.

Where They Came From Christmas Festivals

When the early Christmas began celebrating the Nativity on December 25, they were right in line with an old pagan custom. For people in many lands held festivals about the same time—when they could see that the days were getting longer. Ancient historians did not agree on the exact date of Christ's birth. December 25 was first observed as Christmas about 350 A. D., in Rome.

Crooks Won't Have Any Privacy Soon; Invention Reveals

Dallas — (7) — Soon, perhaps, crooks won't have any privacy and but few secrets from the law. The cops have a couple of new gadgets they say hear all and tell all to the cops. Both inventions have sort of put suburban Highland Park police and robbers on an old-fashioned telephone party line with the crooks doing most of the talking. Highland Park police claim the devices are good for detecting crimes being committed behind closed doors and thick walls. All detectives need do with one of the machines is press it against a wall and listen. It picks up all noises inside like a physician's stethoscope. The other is a miniature radio broadcasting set worn by undercover agents who drop in on poker games or horse race bookmakers. A microphone concealed in the agents' lapel radios all conversations to officers listening to an automobile receiving set. The inside operative flips a button when he is ready for the pinch, and presto! the raiding cops descend.

Beautification of Mother Duchesne Is Fixed for Next June

Vatican City — (7) — The beautification of Mother Philippine Rose Duchesne, who helped establish the Sisters of the Sacred Heart of Jesus in the United States, Tuesday was fixed for next June after the congregation of rites, in the presence of Pope Pius XII, discussed miracles attributed to her. Mother Duchesne and four other sisters of the Society of the Sacred Heart sailed from France to New Orleans in 1818 and went up the Mississippi river to St. Louis. At nearby St. Charles they founded the first school west of the Mississippi. By foot and oxcart Mother Duchesne traveled almost to the Rocky Mountains establishing schools and convents. Several miraculous recoveries from illness were attributed to her. Shop Early, Mail Early

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

There is nothing quite so appreciated by the majority of women than an entire day at a luxury beauty salon being pampered to death! For a brief day (and indeed the hours do fly too quickly) you feel like the queen of the earth with uniformed girls dancing willing attendance upon you. If you are one of the fortunate who can afford the cost of such a day, I urge you to indulge in the experience, for you come out of the salon walking on clouds and very definitely a beauty—quite unlike the wilted being who dragged herself in!

But many of my readers are busy housewives and business women who cannot afford such a luxurious existence or maybe a salon which offers such is far from you. To those I suggest a day of beautifying right in their own home—even though it may be interrupted now and then by a necessary duty!

You begin with limbering and stretching exercises to make every muscle do your will. After ten minutes of this you are ready for a bubbling fragrant tub. Your cosmetic counter offers delightful preparations for baths—effervescent, herbal, bubbles, menthol, or just plain fragrant oil or salts which soften the water. For a quarter of an hour you lie in your chosen bath letting your body completely relax. A face cleansing with cream before you get in is a good idea and do pin up your hair so it will be in curl at the end of the day.

If doorbells and telephones will permit it, take a brief siesta, after your tubbing, right in the sun stretched on a sheet on the floor, with a single blanket over you. Of course, if you have a sun lamp that you use pleasantly accompanied with a good extra bath friction and your skin is tingling from renewed circulation. Make your mind a blank and give yourself a true beauty rest.

All this you may do in the afternoon, and if you can afford the time, snooze right up to near the dinner hour.

Care of Face

If your skin needs a good conditioning you could, of course, give it a thorough massage and tie it up in a mask before you sun bathe. Otherwise give it a "pick-me-up" with creams and lotions when you arise from your nap. The right foundation for your skin does wonders for blending make-up, and you should shop until you find the shade and consistency best suited to your skin.

In salons your feet are beautifully pedicured, and there is no reason why you cannot give them as good a treatment at home with a rich lubricating cream, a cooling foot lotion and manicuring aids. Once they are restored to beauty go over your fingernails. In fact you could have (while you were lounging in your tub) given your hands a manicure. When you do it doesn't matter, so long as you get them looking nicely.

At last you are ready to brush and comb your hair in a becoming style and slip into a gown which you adore. The final touch, for which you have been grooming so carefully, is perfume. Wear a stimulating, tantalizing scent which lifts your spirits skyward as you spray it over you.

After such a glorious ritual you should feel in a conquering mood, well poised, and eager to test your allure.

Miss Lindsay is willing to advise you on your beauty problems. If you write her care of this paper and enclose a self-addressed envelope bearing a 3-cent stamp.

Preserve High Cards to Set Up Long Suit

BY ELY CULBERTSON

In suit establishment plays the greatest care should be taken to preserve high cards, that is, to knock out adverse stoppers whenever possible without sacrificing honors to those stoppers. Appreciation of this principle would have saved declarer's bacon in the following deal:

South, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.
Rubber bridge.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 no trump Pass 2 no trump, Pass
3 no trump Pass Pass

South's final bid was a shade optimistic, considering that his opening bid had fully expressed his values. However, he was quite right to "push" like this, particularly considering that he was playing rubber bridge and that it was not desirable to "hang" one short of game.

West opened the spade queen. Declarer won in his own hand with the ace and led a low diamond toward dummy. West correctly ducked, and the king held the trick. Now, with virtually no thought, declarer played a low diamond to his own queen and, by so doing, ruined himself. West won and led a second spade. Dummy's king won, and the outstanding ten and nine of diamonds under the jack, but had no "luck." Greatly disappointed, declarer now attempted the stratagem of throwing West on lead with a spade in the hope that the defense would open up the heart suit and thereby make it possible for South to establish two heart tricks. But West was not to be caught in this trap. After cashing his spades, he shifted, not to a heart, but to a club, and declarer again was helpless. When he himself had to start the heart suit, he could not make more than the ace, hence had to concede a one trick defeat.

The contract had been lost solely thru declarer's unskillful handling of the diamond suit. After the diamond king held, it could be taken for granted that the diamond ace was in West's hand. Had it been held by East, there would have been no point in his holding up the ace. Thus, it required no more than simple logic for declarer to return to his own hand (with a club) in order to lead a second low diamond toward dummy. It was very poor technique to lead up to the queen or to lay down the queen. Either of these plays certainly would present the holder of the ace with the opportunity to capture an honor instead of a low card. There always was the chance (and, indeed, it actually happened) that West had the blank ace of diamond. If he did, it could be forced out without the sacrifice of an honor.

Obviously, had declarer followed the correct technique and led the second low diamond from his own hand toward dummy, the defenders would have had to throw in the sponge. Now three diamond tricks would have been assured for declarer and these, with three clubs, two spades, and one heart, would have rounded out the contract.

My Neighbor Says—

It is better to water evergreens and shrubs well a few days before transplanting. They will be transplanted more successfully if full of moisture.

To glaze waffles, spread one, after it is baked, with melted butter and a little granulated or confectioner's sugar. Then slip it under the broiler for a minute.

A well-polished piece of furniture looks shabby if its brass trimmings are not cleaned. Use a good grade of brass polish and clean each piece thoroughly.

In baking griddle cakes rub the hot griddle frequently with salt tied firmly in a piece of cloth. The griddle will then be freed of bits of egg batter and the griddle cakes will not be so likely to stick.

If the strong flavor of baked mackerel is objectionable, after the fish has been placed in the oven and heated through, take it from the oven and remove the skin, which will come off easily if the fish is warm.

Keep house plants well showered. Dust settles on their leaves and clogs up pores through which plants breathe.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Physical defects often serve as the goals which drive men to unusual attainment as a form of compensation. This may fall in constructive field, like science and literature, or it may lead to dictatorship and despotism. Be cautious about giving political powers to men who have the physical defects in their make-up which predispose to dictatorship. "Bearcat" or "housecat" or timid childhoo.

CASE P-127: Harrietta B., aged 20, works for a small order firm. "My employer is very difficult to get along with," she began. "He is sharp of tongue and forever keeps hawking us out. Sometimes we deserve it, and sometimes we are entirely innocent, but he acts as if he is a dictator. "He barks orders like an army officer, and seems to think we should jump at his call as if we were slaves of an absolutely monarch. "This is America, not a European dictatorship, so why can't a man develop a sense of humor and see himself as others look at him?"

DIAGNOSIS: Harrietta's boss is 5' 2" tall. This may or may not be, illuminating, but if you have viewed hundreds of such dictatorial employers and have found a surprising number of them to be short individuals, you are inclined to wonder. Perhaps you readers will recall that Napoleon was a short man. This fact might conceivably have led him to show the world that he was a superman in those attributes popularly linked with a he-man; namely, strength, courage, power. It is common to find that persons suffering from any defect will overcompensate for it. If they are intelligent and possessive of much nervous energy, they may resolve to show the world that they are better than they appear on first glance. This resolution may lead them to constructive compensation in the field of literature, music or science, but it can also produce the Napoleonic complex, too.

Dictators Are Not Tall Men

Club-footed Byron compensated by becoming the greatest swimmer of his day, but he also attained preeminence in literature, perhaps driven on by a desire for eternal dominance in the Hall of Fame. Cripples may often develop this "power complex" and lose proper perspective.

But let's look at the physical measurements of our prominent European dictators. Are they tall, genial and humorous as was true of Abraham Lincoln and William Howard Taft—our two giant presidents?

A recent newspaper article points out that Spain's dictator, Francisco Franco, is but 5 feet tall. Is there any connection between this simple fact and Napoleon's shortness?

But move over to Italy. Benito Mussolini stands only 5' 6" tall, which is definitely below our average in this country.

Then follow on the Germany and look at the most dominant leader that nation has probably ever seen; namely, Adolf Hitler. He stands but 5' 4" high.

Obviously, therefore, these three famous dictators are short men, as judged by modern standards, and fit accordingly into the Napoleonic physical measurements.

"Bearcats" Versus "Housecats"

Some tall men are despotic and selfish, but perhaps not in the studios manner of the short type of dictators.

A real despot is mentally trained to such an attitude. His dictatorial attitude is not the casual cruelty of a hulking giant. It is, rather, the product of day by day, diligent self-schooling in some such thoughts as: "I must show the world that I can't walk over me just because I am little. I'll prove that I'm no rubber stamp or yes-man."

This mental ritual is repeated, consciously, year after year. It serves as the goad which drives these men onward toward their goal while other well adjusted men complacently drift along in anonymity. (Copyright, 1939)

Women Who Live in Others' Homes Shouldn't be Imposing

BY DOROTHY DIX

It is the fate of many women to live in other peoples' houses. Sometimes it is a matter of necessity, when a mother has no other refuge than her children's homes. Sometimes it is a matter of choice when a mother has absorbed herself so completely in her children that she has no life apart from them and cannot bear to be separated from them for even a single day.

But, however it is, the situation is one that is charged with dynamite and results in the blowing up of many homes. For it is easier for the lion and the lamb to lie down together than for two women to dwell together under one roof in amity or for an enforced visitor always to find welcome on the mat before her door.

Now, admittedly, the role of permanent guest is one that is difficult to fill gracefully. It requires the finesse of a diplomat, the ability of a mind reader to sense the moods and tastes of one's host and the gift of the exemplary monkey to be blind and deaf and dumb and see nothing, hear nothing and say nothing.

However, without expecting the average woman to be either a she-angel or endowed with unlimited tact, it does seem that any woman who goes to live in another woman's house, whether it be her daughter's or her daughters-in-law's or another's, should bear in mind a few fundamental facts.

First of these is, of course, that she is a guest and should conduct herself like a guest. She should fall in with the family plan of living. She should refrain from criticism and suggestions. She should not try to superimpose her own theories about religion and smoking and card playing and so on upon her host. She should let the woman of the house run it according to her own ideas and the parents rear their children without comment from her. In a word she should never forget that a guest pays for her board and lodging by making herself agreeable.

The second thing, and perhaps the most important thing of all, that the woman who lives in other people's houses should keep continually before her mind's eye is not to be forever under the feet of her hosts. She should give them a break by spending a lot of time in her own room and giving them a chance to be together alone and have intimate husband-and-wife talks without any third person listening in.

She should make a life of her own, have occupations of her own, amusements of her own. She should cultivate some hobby. Learn to play solitaire. Go to the neighborhood movies by herself. Make hook rugs or quilts. Anything so that she will not always have to be dragged along whenever her hosts go or force them to stay at home when they are invited out because she will consider herself a martyr if she is left alone.

If she has money she should put in much time taking long trips and going to winter and summer resorts. Once a woman said to me: "Do you know what my husband would consider the greatest treat that could be given him? It would be for us just to have one week alone without Mother. He doesn't like her. He doesn't like her. He would like to be alone with me for a little while. In the fifteen years we have been married that has never happened. We have never eaten a meal alone."

There you are. The moral of these stories is that if the permanent visitor wants to be popular she mustn't let her host get fed up with her.

How to Cure Your Self-Consciousness

Dear Miss Dix—Will you please explain how to stop self-consciousness?

Answer: Quit thinking about yourself and concentrate your attention on other people. If you are thinking about other people, you won't be worrying over whether or not you are a Robert Taylor. Self-consciousness is only vanity. It is imagining that ev-

PERT PEPLUM

BY ANNE ADAMS

Style has been "taken a-back" this season—way back to the day of the Victorian miss. Here's a striking example—Anne Adams' Pattern 4258. The pert, detachable peplum is attached by a front-tying sash. See how its edges curve nicely in front and ripple in back above the skirt fullness. There are darts above the back waist for smooth fit. In front the skirt extends up to a high twin-peaked waistline to give the smart new waistline. You'll like the neck shaped either high or with trim turn-back revers. Make long-length or short sleeves with pretty shirred fullness. And choose a sheer wool or soft crepe fabric. Pattern 4258 is available in misses' sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20; bust sizes 28, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 18 takes 4 yards 3/4 inch fabric. Send your order to Appleton Post-Crescent Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York, N. Y. Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Good Taste Today

THREE MEN

Dear Miss Post: My employer has given office space to two other men, and soon after these men came they asked me to do some of their typewriting in my spare time. They asked me how much I wanted, and I said, "Oh, nothing." But I hadn't realized that they were going to ask me to do their work so often. My employer just asked me what they were paying me and I told him the whole story and his comment was that my price to them was hardly fair to him! This situation becomes awkward and I don't know how to bring up the subject again with these men, after having closed it myself. Will you help me.

Answer: You might ask your employer to help you out of your predicament by giving you more work to occupy your time so you can refuse the other men. Or if you are being paid a very small salary, he might suggest that these men employ you at part-time rate and explain to them frankly that in this way your pay will be brought up to what he considers your worth but can't afford to pay. It may be of course that they are intending to reward your kindness by giving you a very nice Christmas present, or a first of the year bonus! I am taking it for granted that the time you have given them does not infringe on that which belongs to your employer.

A BROKEN WEDDING PRESENT

Dear Mrs. Post: My sister was married recently and received a wedding gift through the mail that arrived broken. What should she do? Acknowledge the gift and say nothing about the broken glasses, or may she tell the people who sent them? Or perhaps you would suggest instead that she write the store.

Answer: If the package came direct from a store, she should write at once to the store. If it came from the sender and was insured, then it is best to tell the givers that she thanks them. But if it wasn't insured, it is impossible to tell them without making them feel obliged to replace the present, which she would hardly want to do. In this case she can only thank them for their kindness and say nothing about the breakage.

MASCULE TERMS FOR EVERYONE

Dear Mrs. Post: How can the terms mistress of ceremonies, chairwoman (or chairlady) and toastmistress be avoided? So many women dislike them and yet what are they to be called when they are given these assignments?

Answer: Women are called chairwoman and toastmaster and master everybody's attention is focused on you and that everyone is observing and criticizing everything you say and do.

The Creeping Man

by Frances Shelley Wees

YESTERDAY: Higgins denies knowledge that Murchison was murdered, but says he saw a bloody paper on the path. The next day Gordon Deane, dog drops dead from meat the Forresters were planning to eat.

Chapter 27

Dog Baited

As Michael put the car into the garage at the side of the house he heard the sound of hammering coming from the Deanes'. He went to the house, called in to Tuck, "I'll be out for a while, honey. Over with Gordon," and went down the path to Police Headquarters there. We ought to know in a few days.

"Yes, I thought so. And the logical next question is . . . why do you think it's a fake? Because of all this suspicious action, or have you any proof that . . . Dr. Murchison . . . might have been murdered?"

Michael thought that over carefully. He decided. He told them about Higgins, the rockeries, the watch. "It is Edgar Murchison's watch. There isn't the slightest doubt. It was Edgar Murchison's hat that someone left at McBain's the night he disappeared. Why? Because I doubt if a man taken all together, I doubt if a man would go off and leave his hat, his watch, and fifty thousand dollars worth of diamonds, to say nothing of his wife . . . voluntarily."

"I see," Bunnay put the tips of her long graceful fingers together and contemplated them carefully. Tuck got up from her chair, went over to Michael's, sat on his knee, pulled her feet up off the dark floor and put both hands under the edge of his coat. She put her head on his shoulder. She was safe.

"Why, Bunnay?"

"Well . . . I might as well tell you this. It's just that . . . she was having difficulty with her words. It's just that . . . I'm afraid you'll be suspecting Duncan Murchison as well as the rest of them, and I wanted you to know that I've been out walking with him several times lately. He isn't trying to pump me or get information from me, and I don't think he has any ulterior motive in asking me. I'm going because I want to go. I find him a charming person. I like him very much. He isn't a bit bulky and rude when the Deanes or Mrs. Murchison aren't around." She paused. Michael was stroking Tuck's hair gently. "I wanted you to understand," Bunnay said at last.

"Thank you, Bunnay. Were you, by any chance, with him this afternoon?"

"I was."

"Between what hours?"

"He came shortly after three, and he left about half past five."

Michael stirred restlessly. Tuck shifted her position to one less likely to precipitate her on the floor.

"Why, Michael?"

"There's something I want you to understand too," he said slowly. "I can't count Duncan out because he's a charming person. I liked him too. He's a fine upstanding sort of young chap. Everybody has a good word for him, but Michael's face is a queer unlikely sort of business we're engaged in, and I've got to follow where the track leads, Bunnay. Likes and dislikes don't count so much in an affair like this. I haven't got a thing against young Murchison yet. Not a thing. But if I do get the end of a string leading his way, I've got to follow it. Personal considerations can't be counted when it's murder, Bunnay."

She flushed. "No," she said quietly. "I just didn't want you to think I was trying to put anything over on you. I want you to have the facts. I have the utmost confidence in your judgment and common sense."

"I wish his tongue were looser," Tuck said wistfully. She put her hand on his arm, and Michael's face lit up. The telephone shrilled suddenly. Michael lifted Tuck, and dropped her unceremoniously on the couch, and made one leap for the receiver.

"Hello," he said. Then—

"Yes, yes, Forrester speaking."

"It's not, eh? Positive?"

"There was a pause."

"Yes, Thanks."

He turned back. . . . It's Jethro," he said. "He says there isn't a trace of poison on that meat. He's tested it for everything. He says he'll swear to that."

Both girls looked up at him. "Then what killed the dog, Michael?"

He shook his head. "I don't know," he said.

But he did not tell them all that Jethro had said. He emphasized the fact that there was no poison on the meat, no poison of any kind. Not a trace. And then he had said, "But it's some strange and damnable business, Forrester; for after I'd tested it and made sure there was no poison on it I gave the merest scrap of it to my cat, and it dropped dead at my feet."

Chapter 28

Michael did not answer. "Maybe they'll let me have a bite," Gordon said. "Mom thinks they're safe."

"Not an iota safe, the way some kids ride through the traffic," Michael replied.

"Nothin's safe. I had a boat once. Mom never found it out. She'd have thrown a fit. Dad did have a fit when he found out I had it."

"How'd you get a boat without their knowing?"

"Found it. It floated down one spring, and stayed here all summer without anybody coming after it. I took it. Saved my money, and gave it a swell paint job, and fixed it all up. He scuffed at the pine needles. 'Can't have nothin' he said. 'Who? Dad? No. Somebody swiped it.'"

"Maybe the owner found it."

"No chance. I had that boat hid. I kept it up a ravine with branches over it. If the owner had a wanted it he ought to come for it sooner. It was my boat. No, somebody that saw me in it took it. Watched where I put it and swiped it. I like to find out who that was. I would. I bet it was the same guy poisoned Fred. You just wait. I'll get even with him."

"You're crazy," Michael said. "Who'd have it in for a kid?"

Gordon looked at him sideways. "That's all right," he said at last, as if a little ashamed of himself. "I'll take care of that. I'm not such a kid, I'll show him."

"Who?"

"That's it. Who?" He looked at Michael directly. "You took that meat down town, I bet, to have them find out if it had poison. Didn't you?"

"It will. You mark my words," he chose his father's favorite phrase. "He poisoned my dog, and I'll sure get even."

Behind them in the wood a sleepy bird cheeped suddenly. Gordon jumped. "We better get home," he said in a low voice. He bent double, and darted off to the right with the speed of a startled rabbit. Michael following quite unashamedly.

At the gate Gordon looked at him again. "It isn't so safe out there in the woods with robbers and poisoners around," he said in a low tone. "An' you just remember, Mr. Michael Forrester, he didn't intend to get Fredrid with that meat. It wasn't Fred he was after."

In the study the two girls sat very quietly, waiting for him to come in. Tuck was obviously relieved when he did come in and sit down beside them. Bunnay, sitting in the big armchair under a reading lamp, shut her magazine and put it on the table. She looked at Tuck. Tuck nodded her head slightly.

"Michael," Bunnay said quietly, "you're going about this mystery of ceremonies just as a woman is called an author and not an authoress. In many instances the masculine forms apply equally to both men and women.

Musical Instruments Should Be Provided for Children

BY ANGELO PATRI

I was saddened recently to read that a Board composed of able men, good citizens, had refused to grant a sum of money to provide musical instruments for high school children. If they had known Tony they would, I believe, have granted that money.

Tony was one of a large and much neglected family, whose members were well known to the police and probation officers. It seemed for a time as if he too would become their familiar nuisance. That was before he met his music teacher.

This teacher taught music, radiated harmony, and the children flocked to her as bees to a flower. They crowded against her telling her what they could play. The list was long and varied. There were "juice" harps and regular ones, pianos and violins, drums and cymbals, and sandpaper blocks and harmonicas. She welcomed them all. They met at all hours of the day and evening, and they blew and thumped, coaxed and caressed their precious instruments in sweet content.

Tony, looking on, caught the spirit. "I haven't anything to play on, but I'm going to have. Can I listen in?"

He listened, and the more he listened the more he liked to join. He made himself a blacking kit and he blacked shoes until he had saved enough money to buy a second-hand accordion. He carried it to the teacher in triumph and she welcomed him and it with great enthusiasm. He was a child happier than Tony when he played in the orchestra before the assembled school.

Vacation time came and Tony got a job. He saved all he could and went to a master of the accordion and paid for fifty lessons in advance. (So's nothing can happen to the money.) His delight when the teacher invited him to play, solo, for the assembly was something to remember. The expression on his face when the great group of boys and girls applauded and cheered him was enough to make one's heart ache, so full of wonder that all this could come to him.

I think that if this Board of good men had known that boys and girls respond deeply to music, that they need the spiritual something that comes to them as they play out their troubles and griefs, that they need the feeling of mastery that comes to them through the successful handling of a musical instrument, they would have given this matter a second thought.

And, if they had known that blowing a brass instrument in tune and rhythm and tune often takes all the thought of wrong-doing out of the blower's and set in them instead a feeling of perfect peace with the world, they would have given it a third thought.

And if they had known, as we teachers know, that a boy like the one I call Tony is directed away from jail instead of toward it by the use of a musical instrument, they would have given it a hearty endorsement if not their blessing. Adolescent boys and girls of school age need music. It is an essential item in their spiritual diet. It is worth more than it costs even in these days of saving pennies.

In helping your child to adjust himself to the world about him, be guided by the sympathetic wisdom of Angelo Patri. Send for his booklet, "The Child and Other People," enclosing ten cents in coin. Address Angelo Patri, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Hats are following in the footsteps of bustle dresses and to turn your head is a sign of fashion wisdom. When Myrna Loy wears her black begonia dress with its crisp taffeta bow tying in the back she also wears her bustle hat. It is of black velvet with upstanding brim, low round felt crown and a triple cascade of velvet ribbon hiding the star's back curls. Three-tiered velvet cuffs on the black suede cuffs again repeat the bustle influence and the M-G-M actress completes her ensemble with black suede bag and shoes.

Appleton Homes Preparing For Student Yule Vacations From Colleges, Universities

FROM schools in the east, in the west and near home, Appleton boys and girls will be coming home within the next week to spend the holidays with their parents. Miss Elaine Ekern, who will arrive home next Wednesday to spend Christmas with her mother, Mrs. William L. Ekern, 316 N. Durkee street, has a double thrill to look forward to for in addition to the coming holiday season, there is the military ball in January at Ripon college, over which she will reign as an honorary commander. Miss Ekern, a former Lawrence college student, will be the guest of Howard Searle, Adams, for the ball and will hold the rank of honorary company commander, commanding Company B in the Ripon college ROTC unit.

Attending a school over 2,000 miles away, Miss Jean Nolting, daughter of the George Nollings, 211 S. Oak street, and Miss Geraldine Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Schmidt, 207 N. Green Bay street, will remain in the west for Christmas. Both are doing graduate work at the University of Southern California at Los Angeles. Since Geraldine's brother, Herbert, is working at Los Angeles, she will at least have a member of the family at hand to wish a personal "Merry Christmas" to on Dec. 25. Miss Nolting will spend part of the holidays with a friend, Miss Jean Rowland, at San Francisco.

Returning from Boston, Miss Betty Buchanan, daughter of Mrs. G. E. Buchanan, E. College avenue, will arrive home the end of next week from Boston, where she is taking a course in occupational therapy.

Also coming from the east is Miss student, will be the guest of How-ard Searle, Adams, for the ball and will hold the rank of honorary company commander, commanding Company B in the Ripon college ROTC unit.

Appleton Girl Scouts to Give Yule Program

AN all-city "Scouts Own" program for Christmas will be given by Appleton Girl Scout troops at 7:30 Friday night at Morgan school under the direction of Miss Carolyn Boettcher. Parents, leaders, troop committee members, council members and other friends of the scouts have been invited to attend. The "Scouts Own" program is a non-sectarian observance of religious days. It is held each Sunday during the summer camp season.

The program Friday night will include living silhouette pictures with a musical background by the Girl Scout chorus. It will open with a song, "Merry Christmas to You" by the chorus. Lois Mielke will be narrator for the silhouettes.

The program will be as follows: Bell scene, "The Pealing Bells" and "Bells of St. Mary's"—Troop 7, Roosevelt.

The Shepherds, "While Shepherds Watch Their Flocks"—Troop 1, St. Mary.

The Three Wise Men, "We Three Kings" and "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing"—Troop 20, St. Joseph's.

Baby Jesus and Mary, "Away in a Manger" and "Silent Night"—Troop 21, St. Mary.

Old English Carols, "O, Come All Ye Faithful"—Troop 5, Roosevelt.

Christmas scene, "Christmas is Coming"—Troop 15, Roosevelt.

The Night Before Christmas, "Twas the Night Before Christmas"—Troop 24, Edison.

Santa and the Sleigh, "Santa Claus is Coming to Santa's Reindeer"—Troop 17, St. Theresa.

Extempore—Pack 3, Edison.

JUNIOR BRANCH OF A.A.U.W. HOLDS CHRISTMAS PARTY

Grouped around a very modern Christmas tree, Miss Maxine Schalk, Neenah, left, Mrs. Fredric Gibson, Appleton, center, and Miss Ruth Barnes, Appleton, right, looked over the gaily wrapped packages which served as prizes at the Christmas party the Junior Branch of the American Association of University Women had Tuesday night at the Pan-Hellenic house. Like most other organizations in the city, the group turned its December meeting into a party. Miss Schalk as program chairman arranged the games which provided the evening's entertainment, and Mrs. Abbott Byfield was chairman of the refreshments committee. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Christmas Music Is Club Meeting Feature

A program of Christmas music entertained members of the Monday club when they met at Mrs. I. E. Schlagenhauf's home on N. Lawrence street Monday afternoon. Mrs. Lacey Horton sang two solos, "Jesu Babe" and "The Virgin's Slumber Song," by Reger, after which she, Mrs. Nita Brinkley and Mrs. F. H. Richmond sang as a trio "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear." As a duet Mrs. Richmond and Mrs. Horton sang "Listen to the Song of the Angels." Mrs. William Kreiss, who was chairman of the day's program, accompanied the singers and later read a Christmas story. Carol singing by the entire group concluded the program.

Guests at the meeting were Mrs. Arminda Brown, Kimmunity, Ill. who is spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Schlagenhauf, and Mrs. Jeanie Lindsay, Manawa, who came with her sister, Mrs. W. E. Smith. Refreshments were served by the officers, Mrs. E. E. Dunn, Mrs. E. H. Bayley, Mrs. Harold Hamilton, Mrs. E. L. Small and Mrs. John Neller.

Ormsby Hall Residents to Hold Formal Dinner Tonight

RESIDENTS of Ormsby hall, freshmen women's dormitory at Lawrence college, will have a formal dinner tonight at the hall. Miss Ruth Cope, dean of women at the college, and a resident of Ormsby, has invited President and Mrs. Thomas N. Barrows, Dr. and Mrs. John Millis, Dean and Mrs. Donald M. Du Shane, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Watts and Dr. and Mrs. Carl J. Waterman to be guests at the dinner.

Thursday night after closing hours at the dormitory Miss Cope will entertain the girls at a pajama Christmas party.

Numerous Christmas trees covered with silver tinsel and blue lights will decorate Alexander gymnasium for the Lawrence college Christmas dance Friday night. A colored orchestra has been engaged to play for the dance, the last Lawrence college social event before the Christmas vacation, which begins Saturday. The dance will be semi-formal.

Lawrence college fraternities are giving their annual Christmas parties for a group of Appleton grade school children this afternoon. Each of the six fraternities will be host to 20 children, showering them with presents, food and entertainment, and returning them to their homes when the party is over. The fraternity boys have been busy during the last week decorating Christmas trees and planning entertainment for this annual charitable project.

Town Girls' association of Lawrence college had a Christmas supper party Monday night at Hamar Union. Games provided the evening's entertainment, prizes going to the Misses Joan Gerlach, Arlene Murphy, Alyce Jane De Long and Catherine Roemer. Christmas songs were sung by the group, Miss Marjorie Patterson playing the accompaniment. On the supper committee were Miss Nan Getschow, chairman, Miss Lucille Dickson, Miss Mary Galpin, Miss Phyllis Su-bora and Miss Leta Perry.

Miss Dorien Montz, Shorewood, was pledged to Alpha Delta Pi sorority at the tea given last Sunday afternoon at the Pan-Hellenic house in honor of a new patroness of the sorority, Mrs. J. R. Whitman. Active members of Alpha Delta Pi will have a Christmas dessert party in their rooms Thursday night. Members of the sorority who live in Chicago and vicinity plan to meet for luncheon Dec. 29 at the Stevens hotel in Chicago. Miss Ruth Ragland, Elmhurst, Ill., is in charge of arrangements.

Request for Rent Of Auditorium Is Problem to Board

Haresfoot Wants to Play
Here; School Officials Can't Agree

The board of education argued at some length last night over whether to open the new Appleton High school auditorium to the 1940 production of the University of Wisconsin Haresfoot organization, but couldn't settle the matter and decided to delay action until the first meeting in January.

The debate followed a request by Glenn Arthur, president of the Appleton chapter of the University of Wisconsin alumni association, that the board allow the Haresfoot to rent the auditorium for one night in April during the annual tour of the musical comedy.

Dr. George T. Hegner strongly advocated that the board grant the request of the Wisconsin alumni group, pointing out that Haresfoot is affiliated with the University of Wisconsin, a state educational institution. Earlier, Arthur told the board that the local Badger alumni group would receive part of the proceeds and would use them to sponsor scholarships at the university for deserving students. Arthur said that the profit earned by Haresfoot does not go to individuals but to the organization to aid in its spring productions and other university activities.

Dr. Hegner introduced a resolution to open the auditorium to the university organization, and it received a second from John Behnke, but a discussion that ultimately stalled any action then started.

Will "Think It Over"
Seymour Gmeiner, president of the board, said that the board should proceed carefully before making up its mind on the matter and pointed out that it had agreed to open the auditorium only to educational and non-commercial enterprises. He said that should the board grant the request from Haresfoot, it could explain its actions only by regarding the production as being educational, that he believed it was commercial even though part of the proceeds are to be used for scholarships and the rest go to a university group.

Homer Benton observed that Haresfoot musical comedies can hardly be called educational and that should the board open the auditorium to the university actors, it would only encourage similar requests from other groups. "Just where will the board draw the line," he asked?

The board nearly agreed once to leave the decision up to the educational committee, but finally decided to "think it over" and reopen discussion and take action at the first meeting in January.

The board requested City Treasurer Joseph Kox to borrow $20,000 to be used in running the schools from Dec. 22 to Jan. 1. It was reported that this would bring the total amount borrowed by the board during the year to $100,000.

The St. Theresa Men's club and the Holy Name society were granted permission to use the Gymnasium. The education committee of the board was authorized to advertise for printing equipment for the new high school. A list of gifts which have been made to the new high school was submitted to each board member last evening.

Two Persons Hurt In Car Accidents

Little Chute Motorist Injured in Collision on Superhighway

Two persons were injured in traffic accidents in the vicinity of Appleton yesterday.

Robert Kunz, 28, Little Chute, is in St. Elizabeth hospital with a cut left eye and cuts and bruises about the head suffered in a collision on Superhighway 41 near the west limits of Little Chute about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Cars driven by Kunz, who was going east, and H. L. Davis, 114 S. Durkee street, who was traveling west, collided almost head-on when Davis turned out to avoid hitting two bicyclists on the highway, according to Frank Hermens, village marshal. Both cars were badly damaged.

Mohammed Abdalhaq, 62, Topeka, Kan., is confined to St. Elizabeth hospital with cuts and bruises about the head suffered in a collision at Highways 114 and 10 near Waverly Beach about 10:15 yesterday morning. He was riding in a car driven by his brother Yassin, when it was in a collision at the intersection with a truck driven by J. Floyd, Fond du Lac.

Youth to Make Court Appearance Saturday

Allen Triebel, 14-year-old Kaukauna youth arrested Sunday at Dodgeville, will appear in juvenile court Saturday morning to face car and theft charges. The boy was to appear in court yesterday, but the case was postponed until Saturday.

Triebel admitted stealing cars and burglarizing several stores in various parts of the state during the last two weeks with a companion, John Jaeger, 17, Kaukauna, according to Sheriff John Lappen. Jaeger was taken from Dodgeville to Port Washington to face a burglary charge.

Capture Two Youths, Who Flew State Farm

Wausau—Two of three young men who fled from the state reformatory farm near Oneida last night were captured in Marathon county a few hours later as they drove along a highway in a reformatory truck.

Sheriff Ralph Gunzel and Traffic Officer Lloyd Pahl, made the capture. Gunzel said the pair, Charles Ryan, 23, of Milwaukee, and Raymond Stoltz, 24, of the town of Bevent, Marathon county, would be returned to the reformatory at once. Ryan, Stoltz and George Barker of Crandon, seized the truck about 9 o'clock last night and drove away from the farm. Barker left his companions at a point near Crandon and stull was at large today.

Martin Snyder Is Granted New Trial

Appellate Court Rules
Judge Erred in Instructions to Jury

Los Angeles—(AP)—Martin (The Gimp) Snyder says he knows there is a Santa Claus.

Only a week ago Snyder told a superior court judge that jail-life threatened to impair his eyesight, and won release on his own recognition.

He had been behind bars nearly a year awaiting action on his appeal from conviction of attempting to murder Myrl Alderman, who was pianist for Ruth Etting when the blonde singer was still Snyder's wife. Then yesterday the court of appeal granted him a new trial.

"Now I am thankful to God almighty for answering my prayers," Snyder cried. "Now I know there is a Santa Claus."

Alderman and Miss Etting eloped to Las Vegas, Nev., and were married during Snyder's trial. Snyder testified he still was very fond of Miss Etting, even though they were divorced, and he didn't like the way things were going between her and Alderman.

The pianist was wounded in the abdomen in the presence of Miss Etting and Snyder's daughter, Edith. Snyder also was charged with attempting to kill his daughter and former wife. The jury acquitted him on those counts, but convicted him of trying to kill Alderman and he was sentenced to a prison term of "not more than 20 years."

The appellate court ruled the judge erred in instructing the jury that "a person must be presumed to intend to do that which he voluntarily and willfully does in fact, and must also be presumed to intend all the natural, probable and unusual consequences of his own acts."

Fair and Warmer Weather Forecast

Below Freezing Tempera-
ton, Vicinity Today

Below freezing temperatures prevailed today in sharp contrast to the unusually mild weather of the last few days. Mercury in the thermometer on the roof of the Post-Crescent building registered 27 degrees early this afternoon.

Maximum and minimum marks during the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock this morning were 44 degrees at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and 26 degrees at 8 o'clock this morning, according to records at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Fair weather is predicted for tonight and Thursday with colder temperatures tonight and warmer weather tomorrow.

Highest and lowest temperatures reported in the nation yesterday at official weather bureau stations were 81 degrees at Los Angeles, Calif., and 10 degrees at Devils Lake, N. D., according to the Associated Press.

Mayor Says Delay In Payment of Tax Won't Affect City

The executive board of the Wisconsin League of Municipalities at a meeting with Governor Heil and other state officials yesterday agreed to accept payment of the highway privilege taxes in three installments.

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., who attended the meeting as a member of the board, said today the delay in the payment will not affect Appleton as the city has enough money on which to operate.

The payment due Appleton is about $37,000 and will be made in three installments, 50 per cent before Jan. 1, 25 per cent before Feb. 1 and the remaining 25 per cent before March 1.

Sportsmen Study Feeding Program

Winter Care of Pheasants
Is Outlined at Meeting of Club

The pheasant winter feeding program was outlined by Wilbur Steenis, president of the Outagamie Conservation Club, Inc., at a short business meeting of the organization Tuesday night at Eagles hall. He asked that anyone interested in helping with the feeding program speak to him.

There was considerable interest in two rabbit traps on display at the meeting. "They will be used by the club to trap live rabbits in the woods. The rabbits, unharmed by the trap, then will be released in the woods."

A social hour for members of the club and their wives followed the meeting. Schafskopf and rummy were played, prizes going to Ralph Novak, James Schwerbel, Ralph Hansen, Mrs. Ethel Van Ryzin, Mrs. Wilbur Steenis, Mrs. Fred Rehfeldt, Mrs. Fred Neuman and Mrs. Leonard Zehren.

Election of officers will take place at the club's next meeting, on Jan. 9.

City Wants Supervisors to Remit Costs in Parking Cases

The city council's traffic committee yesterday instructed Harry P. Hoefel, city attorney, to frame a resolution to the Outagamie county board asking supervisors to remit court costs on parking fines in Appleton, according to Alderman C. D. Thompson.

The resolution, when it is completed, will be submitted to the city council for approval and then will be presented to the county board at its February meeting.

Overtime parking, if the motorist pleads guilty or is found guilty, now costs the motorist $3.95, including a $1 fine and $2.95 in costs.

The money is split between the city, the police pension fund and the county, with the city retaining the fine, the pension fund getting 95 cents and the remaining $2 to the county.

The first step is to ask the county to remit costs, Alderman Thompson said. This will reduce the charge to $1.95 which later could be reduced to a figure more nearly in line with the violation, possibly $1.

TAPPI Section Holds Meeting at Madison

Over 70 persons attended a meeting of the Lake States section, Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry at Madison last night. Papers were presented by M. W. Bray and Dr. E. E. Landon in Accord With Roosevelt's Foreign Policies

G. O. P. Leader Going Along With Administration's Program

BY W. B. BAGSDALE
Washington—(AP)—Whatever shots Alf M. Landon may have taken at President Roosevelt on the domestic front, the titular head of the Republican party has shown every intention of going along with the administration's foreign program.

In effect, Landon has made it clear that he is in fairly general accord with the foreign policy now being pursued; that as far as he is concerned, domestic politics should be fought out on domestic issues, and partisanship should end at the same spot at which the ship's cars used to open during prohibition days.

This disposition has been manifested in many ways. A year ago, Landon went to Lima as a delegate to the Jan American conference whose aim was to promote a better understanding among the American nations. He created quite a stir then.

More recently, he came to Washington with Colonel Frank Knox of Chicago, his vice-presidential running mate in 1936, to join in an agreement to lay aside politics during the crisis that attended the outbreak of war in Europe.

Since then, by word and deed, he has endeavored to support the president's foreign program on the theory that, regardless of party, the president was the head of the nation and in treating with foreign nations was speaking for the whole country, not just the Democratic party.

Reciprocity Group to Hear Wausau Breeder

Washington—(AP)—Aides of Representative W. B. Bagdsale said that Dr. L. J. O'Reilly, Wausau, Wis., president of the American National Fox and Fur Breeders association, would testify before the committee on reciprocity information hearing Dec. 19 on a proposal for a supplemental trade agreement with Canada.

O'Reilly, who has urged steps be taken to protect the domestic fur market, was expected to support a proposal for limiting Canadian importations of silver fox and other furs. Reduction in the United States import duty also will be considered.

It Is Said--

That a 2-wheel trailer which disappeared from the home of John R. Fanslow, 921 E. Alton street, last Halloween was found this week—in the Fox river below the John street bridge. It is believed the pranksters pushed the trailer from the top of the hill near the river. The trailer was found when water was lowered in the river for the repair of a lock.

The Selection of Candidates

Political leaders from all over the country have been in Washington this week and there has been much political talk. But unless I am greatly mistaken, what has come of it all is the realization in both parties that it is much too early to select candidates, define the issues, or fix the strategy of the campaign. Important practical consequences may follow. It seems most likely that the candidates of the two parties will not be chosen in the primaries but in the conventions. And this would mean that the responsible party leaders and managers are likely to keep themselves uncommitted to any of the various contenders, encouraging each to demonstrate his strength, allowing each to exhibit his weakness, but helping none, to arrive at the convention of his party with a working majority of instructed delegates.

In the existing circumstances this is the most sensible way to go about the business of selecting the President of the United States. For since there is no candidate in either party whose qualifications and availability are pre-eminent, the attempt to make a nomination by rushing the primaries is almost certain to descend into a demagogic and rabble-rousing search for "issues" that would make hopelessly difficult the task of the next Administration.

No one today can possibly see clearly and truly the issues of the next year, much less of the next four years. And, therefore, what is most to be desired is that instead of dividing the nation into embittered factions, the parties should move toward a consensus in which on the vital matters there are no irreconcilable differences between them. The parties will, of course, fight a political campaign. But there will be serious decisions to be taken this winter, all through next summer, and after the election in which they must work together. There will be very great questions in which partisanship would be profoundly unpatriotic and utterly intolerable.

Emotional Issues Would Cloud Real Problems

Looked at in this way, remembering that in such a critical time the only good politics is statesmanship, it is evident, I think, that the responsible leaders cannot let the nominations be determined by a rip-roaring struggle for instructed delegates. In such a contest the candidates would be subjected to almost irresistible pressure from the local machines; they would be pulled and pushed to denounce this and promise that because for the moment this or that looks like the popular thing to do in this or that locality.

So, if the party leaders make the mistake of letting the nominations be determined in the primaries, they will only confuse and distract and divide public opinions; they will hopelessly impair the solidarity and the efficiency of the party that wins the election and must then govern the country.

That at bottom is why Mr. Roosevelt cannot be a candidate for a third term. And, equally, that is why he ought not for some considerable time to announce a final and complete retirement from politics. If he runs for a third term, obviously he will split his party, and create an issue between the parties which is primitive, emotional and destructive of any rational consideration of the great questions of our time. On the other hand, if he retires decisively, he will precipitate an unseemly scramble for the succession, and in this scramble the less responsible and the less scrupulous are likely to have the advantage. For the Democrat who really fits to succeed the President is almost certainly the kind of man who is too busy and too public-spirited to rush around the country promising the kitchen stove and denouncing the man-eating shark.

Must Study Qualities of Prospective Candidates

The same is true of the Republicans. They are offered the choice of three men, no one of whom has ever held a high executive office or has ever participated in the administration of the national government. Yet from among these three men they must almost certainly choose their candidate for the Presidency in a time when the burden of responsible decision in that office is greater than it has ever been before. Since they are not merely nominating a campaigner but may be choosing the next President, they cannot afford to let the choice be determined by anything other than a searching judgment of the capacity of these men to develop executive qualities which none of them has as yet needed to possess.

This does not mean that the making of a Chief Executive does not exist in preponderant degree in Mr. Vandenberg, Mr. Taft, or Mr. Dewey. But it does mean to say that this is what has to be looked for and this is what remains to be proved. It can not be proved by stump-speaking and statements and publicity and maneuvers.

A true estimate of the qualifications of these essentially untried candidates will have to be arrived at by those who knew them, have watched them closely, have seen them in action when their behavior was not planned, and their brains were off duty. It will be arrived at by the gradual emergence of the candid opinions of their associates, and of politicians who are cool judges of men, and of the newspaper men who have learned to detect the difference between shoddy and real wool.

Speeches May Reveal Direction of Appeal

The public appearances of candidates throw some light, though indirectly, on their qualifications for the office to which they aspire. But in these days of synthetic publicity it is well to be skeptical. The prepared speeches do give some measure of the intellectual tastes of the candidates, whether he writes his own speeches or has them fabricated by a brains trust. They give an even better measure of his moral quality. For a series of speeches is bound to disclose where he is pitching his appeal, how far he is willing to compromise his real opinions, and above all whether he is a man with coherent convictions and stable traditions or merely an ambitious man acting as a guerrilla fighter and sniper, trying to win by scoring on the weak spots of the opposition.

A primary campaign can disclose much about a candidate. But when, as is the case today, the candidate has never been governor of a state or member of the Cabinet, and there is, therefore, no substantial record in executive office that offers an objective criterion, a primary campaign is not sufficient to estimate his qualifications. The campaign should be treated as circumstantial evidence. But the verdict should be made by leaders who

St. Joseph's Guild

Is Organized at Dale

Dale—An organization to be known as St. Joseph's Guild has been formed by members of St. Joseph church. The first meeting was held Thursday with Miss Lenore Dauten. Mrs. Alfred Kohl is president and Mrs. Harold Grossman, secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. D. H. Hanselman spent the weekend with her daughter Lorraine in Milwaukee.

Mrs. Louise Beckman entertained relatives Friday evening in honor of the eighty-eighth birthday anniversary of her father William Hintz of Weyauwega, who is spending a few days with her.

All officers of the Lutheran Ladies Aid society were reelected at their meeting held Thursday. They are: President, the Rev. Waldemar Zink; vice president, Mrs. Edward Roessler; secretary, Mrs. Louise Schmidt; treasurer, Mrs. Owen Peterson.

There will be mass at 8 o'clock Sunday morning at St. Joseph's church.

Marian Merkley has returned to her home from St. Elizabeth hospital. She suffered several fractures when struck by an auto just after alighting from the school bus a few weeks ago.

William Larry son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Dietrich and William Ferdinand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Schultz, were baptized Sunday at St. Paul's Lutheran church. Sponsors for the first named were Irwin Dietrich, Walter Neuman, and Irene Thieme; for the second, Arlyn Schultz, Floyd Zimmer and Louise Braatz.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If it is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "top and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Refuse anything else. At all drug stores, 10¢ and 25¢.

DON'T SCRATCH, SOOTHE THE IRRITATION

Quick relief from the maddening itch of eczema, psoriasis, poison ivy, and irritation about the rectum or personal parts is obtained by applying Resinol Ointment. Leave it on overnight. It lessens the desire to scratch, and eases the irritation.

The soothing effect of Resinol takes the sting from the irritated places and makes you more comfortable. The skin heals sooner, too, with the help of Resinol, as its oily base holds the medication in active contact with the tortured parts.

For gentle cleansing of irritated skin, Resinol Soap is excellent because it has no excess of free alkali and is so refreshing. Many nurses suggest and use Resinol Ointment and Soap—why don't you try them? Buy at any drug store. For free sample, write to Resinol, Dept. 85, Baltimore, Md.

Auto Owners Slow To Send for 1940 License Plates

State Needs License Money to Meet Obligations to Cities

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Add to the financial troubles of the Heil administration the fact that receipts from motorists for auto license plates are coming in more slowly than state officials anticipated, and more slowly than experienced in other years which brought about their anticipations. Beginning on the 20,000 series this week, authorities at the state license department said that sales thus far are about 50 per cent behind last year, a fact which was attributed principally to the advancement of the due date from Feb. 1 to April 1 by legislative action, and the omission of reminders from the state department to motorists this year.

As an economy move the new administration, at the suggestion of Chief George Rickman of the license bureau, ordered that the system application and distribution of plates be simplified this year, with emphasis on the responsibility of the motorist to obtain his license before the legal deadline.

$30,000 Savings
Under the new system the car owner simply sends a check for the amount of his fee and his certificate of title to the license bureau. Thus the dispatching of thousands of pieces of correspondence, and the expenditure of about $30,000 for mailing, will be eliminated, according to Rickman.

Capitol observers pointed out today, however, that the tardiness of motorists in applying and paying for their 1940 auto numerals is closely tied up with the state treasury balance and the probable ability of the state to pay its obligations when they come due during the next few months.

Ordinarily, it was pointed out, receipts from the licenses are used by the treasury to meet state obligations to localities for street maintenance, totaling more than $5,000,000, which are due in spring, and for the retirement of county highway bonds issued during the spring months. Delay in receiving the license fees may make it more difficult to meet these payments, which are in addition to heavy disbursements in the intervening months for high school aids and highway privilege tax returns to cities and villages.

200 Students Take Part in Program

Wauwata Music Organization to Offer Christmas Numbers Tuesday

Wauwata—The outstanding Christmas celebration in Wauwata High school this year will be that of the music department next Tuesday evening. The 200 students who comprise the orchestra, band, mixed chorus, girls' glee club, junior band and junior high girls' glee club, will present a program consisting mainly of Christmas music. Miss Phyllis Plahn and Ernest Weber, who are in charge of the program, expect an audience of 500 persons for the concert.

Tickets are being handed out by Miss Plahn, Mr. Weber and the office staff to those interested in using them. A silver offering will be taken during the evening.

The program is as follows: Senior band, march, "Young America," a composition by Prof. Ernest Weber; "Christmas Songs," arranged by DeLaMater; "North Pole," by Hayes; "Lake Hamilton," by Chenette; Girls' Glee club, "The Rosary," Nevlin; "Morning," Ol' Speaker, bass solo, Philip; Singers, Junior Glee club, "Carol of the Shepherds," "Bohemian Folk Song," and "O, Little Town of Bethlehem." Trombone solo, "Fancy Free," John Schroeder; mixed chorus, "Comrades of the Road," Ira B. Wilson; "Carol of the Bells," "Ukrainian Carol," by M. Leontovich; orchestra, "Western World," Chenette; march, "Tannhauser," J. Wagner; junior band, march, "Star of the East," Johnson; "Commanders," Davis; senior band, "Iron Count," King; "Man with the Mandolin," "Trombone Swing," Chenette; grand ensemble, "Silent Night."

'Gemuetlichkeit' Explains Personality Of Public Welfare Department Director

(Editor's Note: This is another of a series of articles on "new faces in high places," high state officials appointed in the Heil administration. Others will follow.)

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Those who understand the word "gemuetlichkeit" will understand the personality of Frank C. Klode, 73-year-old director of the state public welfare department, the biggest and most expensive, and one of the most vital departments of the state government. Another of Governor Heil's old and intimate Milwaukee friends, Klode is hospitable, amiable, democratic, probably the most easily approached public man in the capitol. His giant frame, his merry talk, his voice which betrays strong traces of his old country origin, his simplicity and friendliness, all mark him for a leading member of that group of Milwaukee old-timers who moved into the capitol with the election of Julius Heil.

Frank Klode is a rich man. Until he disposed of his business, his income was reputed to be about $40,000 a year. He is now working for the state government, executive head of a department which ministers to the poor, weak and unfortunate, for $7,000.

Appearance is Deceiving
Except that it is pretty well known, the casual visitor would never guess Klode's comfortable circumstances. He is the complacent, bunched, dressed in a heavy, inexpensive suit, an ancient hat, and smoking a thick and virulent cigar. The sophisticated might find fault with reference to "them prisoners," and similar speech habits, but he has an unfailing habit of making friends.

Klode's appointment to the crucial welfare post was criticized in some quarters, particularly by those interested who felt that a person of proven experience and training in social problems should have been chosen.

The present chief of the department, however, doesn't worry about such critics, in fact doesn't even recognize that some people feel that he is unqualified for the job. Although the textbooks used by the professional social workers are filled with terminology with which he is unacquainted, he knows social work at first hand, he says, because he has spent much of his time in recent years, and much of his personal resources, in helping the unfortunate.

In Klode's view his job is simply to direct the state's feeding and clothing of the poor, the treatment and care of criminals, the sick and the insane, and the application of policies which will prevent, as far as that is possible, the multiplication of such burdens on the rest of society.

Care for Youngsters
He emphasizes the responsibilities of the state in the prevention of social problems.

"Real social work is to take care of the youngsters; in that way we can prevent trouble. If we prevent crime by training our young, we'll have something worth while," he observes.

Klode's career, like the governor's and those of many of the key figures in the Heil administration, reviews the saga of the immigration boy, schooled by experience and self-reliance.

Klode came to Wisconsin from Germany 60 years ago to earn his first dollar by cutting willow shafts on the banks of the Milwaukee river for his father, who was a basket weaver. At 14 he went to Minnesota.

OLDEST OF CAPITOL KEY FIGURES

Frank C. Klode, director of the state public welfare department, is the oldest of the key figures of the Heil administration at 73. The veteran and wealthy Milwaukee businessman is shown here in a characteristic pose at the desk at which he directs state activities in prisons, hospitals, asylums, direct relief, child welfare, and pensions.

to work on a farm. On the train he lost his purse of $30 to a couple of poker sharks, and he took a vow then never to play poker again.

Returning to Milwaukee, he was successively a teamster, shipping clerk, and salesman for a furniture store. When his employer decided to go out of business, young Klode at 20 years of age borrowed $50,000 from a trusting banker and took over the business himself. Twenty-four years later he sold that business for a million dollars. Later he established another furniture company, which he relinquished to his son and grandson 8 years ago.

Stiff Reductions
In a sense Klode's administration of the gigantic welfare department is a demonstration area for the Heil administration's goal of economy and business efficiency in the management of the whole state government enterprise. Although previous managers of state institutions regularly appealed for huge increases in appropriations, Klode voluntarily applied for a cut, which the Republican legislature granted with alacrity, and since has accepted stiff reductions in funds from the Heil emergency board. He approved economies in allowances for prisoners' postage; he is making plans for making all state institutions more it would require to finish the industrial school for girls at Oregon, he said he would undertake the job for the nominal sum of $250,000. Later it was divulged that, despite the protests of contractors, he had put in prison labor to work on the job in order to make the appropriation stretch.

At 73, Klode is probably the oldest high state officer in the capitol. Occasionally when reference or inquiry is made as to his age, he will reply that he is "old enough to do this job."

Owns Estate
His home in Milwaukee, a part of a beautiful estate in the suburbs, is a show-place, according to his friends, but famed for its comfort and hospitality. The Klode estate, surrounded by a fence, is on the lake shore in the village of Whitefish Bay, of which he was once village president.

It was not generally recalled when his appointment was announced, but Klode served on the board of control, predecessor of the board of public welfare, about a decade ago, and earlier was chosen by Governor Blaine to head a commission to study the problems of blind welfare work in Wisconsin. Out of that study and the commission's report grew much of the legislation on which the administration of blind pensions and blind welfare work is now based, according to social workers.

Republicans Put Minnesota Governor on the Future List

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Republicans have picked themselves up a new national leader in Harold E. Stassen, the strapping young governor of Minnesota. He won't be a presidential candidate in 1940 because he is only 32 years old, but he is down on the future books now as a comer.

This is the result of the close-up inspection which Republican party leaders gave him here during the last few days. Governor Stassen came to Washington to speak at the gridiron dinner. When he left town Sunday night, he had met most of the party insiders. Comment among them was most favorable and some suggested that Governor Stassen should be the party keynoter in the 1940 convention.

His ability as a speaker is recognized now and he has the additional advantage of being ineligible himself as a candidate.

Whether Governor Stassen will be selected will depend upon the wishes largely of Congressmen Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, the Republican leader of the house. Congressman Martin has won wide approval among Republicans for his management of the house minority during the last two sessions. In a poll of Washington correspondents he was listed as the ablest member of the house. He was one of the original Landon men and the two remain close political friends.

The choice of keynoter will rest with a special committee on convention arrangements which will be appointed and headed by John Hamilton, Republican national chairman. Following the consensus of party leaders, it already has been decided that Congressman Martin is to be given his pick of the two big convention spots—one being the temporary chairmanship, the other being the permanent chairmanship.

The temporary chairmanship does nothing except deliver the keynote speech. The permanent chairman conducts the convention and must often make difficult parliamentary decisions arising out of maneuvers in behalf of rival candidates for the nomination.

Martin Is Universally Popular in Washington

Congressman Martin is universally popular in Washington. He is 54 years old, a bachelor and publisher of a small newspaper in Massachusetts. In the cloakroom, or in parliamentary skirmish on the house floor, Congressman Martin is an effective leader. But he is not much of a windbag and therefore cuts a rather mediocre figure as a debater. Compared with such resounding tub thumpers as Hamilton Fish he is practically inarticulate.

That makes him less desirable as a keynoter but after all, Joe can read and with the radio and the newspaper as the chief outlets for a keynote speech, rather than the delegates in the audience, the old silver tongue and leather lungs are not nearly so essential as they were in ancient days. Some of congressman Martin's friends think that if the Republican convention goes into a deadlock—which is what a number of insiders are trying to bring about—then Congressman Martin, because of his record and personal popularity, might be tapped as the candidate. So they are trying to hold Martin in the keynote spot as part of the play.

Party Wants To Move Younger Men To Front

Much planning and button-holing is going on as if all of this were extremely vital. The main thing is that the party has found in Governor Stassen a youngster who appears to have real appeal and it seems desirable to him make the most effective use of him. Republicans want to put their young men out in front and it's about time. If the Stassen people can persuade Martin to become permanent chairman, then it's likely that the young governor of Minnesota will make the keynote speech. He would be the youngest man to so lift his voice since William J. Bryan made his cross of gold speech, at the tender age of 36 and won the Democratic presidential nomination. In those days it was the Democrats who were robbing the kindergarten.

Grandmothers' Club Has Christmas Party

Clintonville — The Grandmothers' club held a Christmas party Tuesday afternoon at the Parkview hotel. The time was spent informally, after which a luncheon was served to nine members. Gifts were exchanged and Santa paid the group a visit to present each member with a gift. This was the last meeting of the club until April, when members will again meet at the homes every two weeks.

Mrs. Oscar Hagen is visiting several days with relatives and friends at Milwaukee. Attorney and Mrs. Otto Olen returned home Sunday from Rochester, Minn., where the former went through the Mayo clinic. He had been confined to a hospital at Elack River Falls for more than a month, having been taken ill with a heart attack while enroute to Rochester on Oct. 23.

Girls Trying to Win Points at Basketball

Basketball is being played by girls who are forming after school and noon hour leagues at Appleton High school. Peggy Ogilvie is captain of the round robin teams which will be formed at the end of practice sessions this week. Class teams will be formed after the round robin games are played.

Members of the Girls Athletic association are working to earn points toward a letter in basketball. Girls receive 75 points for being on a round robin team and an additional 25 points for playing on a winning team.

Christmas Play to Feature Program at Kimberly High School

Kimberly—A Christmas play will be presented by high school students in the assembly at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, Dec. 22, with Miss Jean Webster as director. The Holy Family will be portrayed by Betty Wisnans as Mary, and John Mauthe as St. Joseph.

The program will open with the student body singing "Joy-to the World," followed by a clarinet trio by Louis Doerfler, Joseph Zeegers and James Vanden Elsen, playing "O, Little Town of Bethlehem," "The First Noel," and "Hark, The Herald Angels Sing." A reading entitled "The Birth of Christ" by Alfred Tennyson, will be given by George Krueger.

Jim Fleweger will sing "Jesu Bambino." Other choir boys are David Smith, Anthony Van Stralen, Anthony Roovakkers, Paul Roovakkers, Lyle Krueger, Frank Van Cuyk, Robert Lang, Billy Lang, Clarence De Wildt and Virgil La Blanc. They will sing "Silent Night." Concluding the program the student body will sing "Oh Come, All Ye Faithful." The accompanist will be Miss Diana Kokke.

At 7 o'clock Thursday evening choir children of the public school, under the direction of Miss Jean Webster, will sing Christmas carols at the personages of the Kimberly churches and homes of the sick.

Boy Scout Troop No. 19 will sponsor a dance at the clubhouse Wednesday evening. A small admission will be charged, with proceeds going into the scout fund.

2 Farm Programs Are Discussed at Educational Meet

New Licensing and Bonding Law Explained at Farmers' Confab

The state's quality milk program, the dairy advertising program of the Wisconsin Dairy Industries association and the new licensing and bonding law covering milk plants and wholesale dairy products dealers were discussed at an educational meeting attended by about 300 farmers, plant operators and dealers yesterday afternoon at the Appleton Vocational school. The meeting was one of a series of fourteen being held in the state.

County Agent J. F. Magnus discussed the progress being made with the quality milk program in the county and stated that the plan has almost 100 per cent backing of the farmers. Russell Frost of the state department of agriculture explained the dairy advertising program, and W. L. Witte of the department spoke on the licensing and bonding law.

Magnus reported that within four days after 119 schoolhouse meetings were held in the county to explain the program, 113 favorable meeting reports were made by the farmer leaders in charge. Other counties are anxious to take up the program which is inexpensive and shows how farmers can improve quality of their milk by simple and easy means, he said.

Frost said that the advertising program consists of improving the quality of dairy products, creating greater sales and consumption and cooperating with similar organizations in other states.

Voluntary Plan
Under a voluntary plan, farmers of the state are to raise $200,000 through a check-off of a half cent per pound of butterfat during August, he explained. The average farmer would pay about 10 cents a year per cow that averages 200 pounds of butterfat. No money is spent until $100,000 is pledged, he explained, and how, when and where it will be spent will be determined by a 2-3 vote of the board of directors of the Wisconsin Dairy Industries association. A total of 154 plants have signed agreements for the program, he stated.

County Agent Magnus stated that a committee to be in charge of the program in Outagamie county is being selected, and that the program will be carried out here on a township basis.

Frost said that each dairy product will be advertised in proportion to the amount contributed by each branch of the industry. Minnesota, he said, has pledged $100,000 on the voluntary plan, and Iowa and Washington have raised their quotas by legislation.

The United States is low in the consumption of butter, cheese and milk, he said, in pointing out that there is a market that can be reached through the advertising medium. Frost compared the amounts spent for advertising dairy product substitutes and other products to that spent for dairy products.

Law by Comparison
In one national women's magazine, he said, 26 square inches advertised dairy products, 261 dairy product substitutes and 626 other food products.

Half the farmer's income in Wisconsin comes from milk, he said in stressing the need for the advertising program which he said should be termed an investment and not an expenditure.

Discussing the new license and bonding law, Witte said that before a license is given, each plant or dealer will have to meet sanitary standards and insure payments to the farmer. The law is a result of repeated requests from farmers all over the state who suffered losses through bankruptcy of milk plants, he said.

To facilitate inspections on sanitation and payment guarantees, the state has been divided into three geological sections and licenses will be issued at a different time of the year in each. Outagamie county is in the southeastern area and licenses will be issued from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31. Licenses will be issued on May 1 and Aug. 1 in the other two sections, he said.

License Required
Dairy products dealers, who in the past did not need a license, now will have to pay a flat fee of $15 per year and must guarantee payment to the plant from which they get their products, Witte explained.

Milk plants also will have to guarantee payment of money owed to its milk producers. This guarantee may be obtained in several different ways, Witte said.

One is to have a commercial or personal security bond. A commercial bond would cost from $10 to $15 per $1,000. A personal bond would have to be signed by two persons, and the department of agriculture would have to ascertain whether the endorsers were able to pay the face of the bond in case the plant closed.

Another method is having a financial statement certified to by a certified accountant, and the statement would have to show that the plant was reasonably sure to pay for the products. A third method is having the department draw up the statements, but Witte said that with the present staff of accountants, this plan will not be available.

Other Methods
A fourth method is the acceptance by the department of a contract existing between the plant and buyer, under which the plant agrees to sell to or through the buyer all its products. Under this method a treasurer on custodian of funds would have to be named and placed under a fidelity or personal bond.

A fifth method, which could be used in plants where products are held for a period of time, is having a lien on finished products. This method could not be used where products are taken from the plant

Carl Peik Again Is President of Agricultural Body

Four-Day Calumet County Fair During Labor Day Period in 1940

Chilton — Carl Peik was reelected president of the Calumet County Agricultural association at a meeting of the stockholders at the courthouse in Chilton Saturday afternoon. Other officers of this association, which has charge of the county fair, who were elected were: Oscar H. Moehrkke, vice president; T. Henry Weeks, secretary; and Herbert Harder treasurer.

A complete report of receipts and disbursements was presented to the stockholders at the meeting, a copy of which was included in the county board proceedings. Mr. Weeks called attention to the fact that improvements totaling $1,126 were made on the fair grounds which include changes in the exhibition buildings, painting the grand stand and re-roofing the cattle barn. It was voted to hold a four-day fair to extend over the Labor day period in 1940.

The following improvements were discussed and left to the consideration of the directors: the matter of additional premiums for the township booths and the methods of judging the booths; a better fence for the north side of the fair grounds; the need for a system of tree-planting on the fair grounds; and the construction of additional bleachers north of the present grandstand.

Christmas Recipe Tips are Offered

Figures for Amount of Nuts Needed to Fill Cup are Cited

Christmas cooks planning for candies, cakes and puddings often wonder how many pounds of unshelled nuts will be needed to supply the nut meats recipes call for.

The federal bureau of economics, in a bulletin to J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent, finds in the course of its research work with foods that it takes about these quantities of unshelled nuts to supply a cup of nut meats:

Peanuts, about half a pound; pecans and filberts a little less than a pound; almonds, just about a pound; English walnuts a little more than a pound; and black walnuts, about two pounds. These are approximate ratios, but close enough for the cook who is buying unshelled nuts to enrich holiday sweets.

Food research in the bureau shows that peanuts, pecans, chestnuts, almonds, English walnuts, filberts, and Brazil nuts are good sources of vitamin B, and pecans are also a good source of vitamin A. Most nuts are rich in phosphorus, and unblanched almonds, hazelnuts, walnuts, pecans, and hickory nuts are good sources of iron.

A complete program of entertainment has been planned and refreshments will be served following the program.

Reelect Schaefer Grange President

Greenville Farm Organization to Hold Christmas Party

George Schaefer was reelected master of South Greenville Grange at its annual meeting last Saturday night at the Grange hall. Robert Schroeder was elected overseer. Mrs. Schroeder pianist and John Schaefer lecturer.

Other officers include Mrs. John Dankert, secretary; Mark Prindle, treasurer; Harold Reinders, steward; Stanley Jamison, chaplain; Donald Menning, assistant steward; Mrs. Henry Schaefer, lady assistant steward; Miss Muriel Anderson, Miss Ruth Mills and Mrs. Lester Pingel, three graces.

The Grange Christmas party will follow the regular meeting Dec. 23. The entertainment committee which will be in charge of the party will meet Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Harford Johnson.

Officers of Outagamie county recreational group will be elected at a meeting Jan. 9 at Center town hall. In charge of entertainment for that meeting will be Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Magnus, Miss Mae Bell Plamann, Elvy Lillge, Miss Lucy Haef and Orville Lambie.

Another proposed change would require all cheese makers to hold their product at least four days, or until it is sufficiently dry on all surfaces to be fit for paraffining.

Another subcommittee proposed to the board of agriculture that dairy inspectors be required to ascertain at what temperature the farmer cools his milk, and to determine on the plant inspection report what the operator is doing to help the farmer improve his product.

Committee Will Name Demonstration Agent

The county agricultural committee will meet Saturday morning to consider applications for the post of home demonstration agent. Engagement of a demonstration agent was authorized by the county board at its November session. The new agent will begin duties on Jan. 1, according to J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent.

Changes in Cheese Regulations to be Topics at Parleys

Northeastern Wisconsin Hearing in Appleton Wednesday, Dec. 20

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau — Various important changes and modifications in state regulations covering the grading, marking and packaging of American cheese will be discussed by agents of the state department of agriculture and presented to cheese producers and cheese makers at three public hearings in the next 10 days, it was announced today.

The northeastern Wisconsin hearing, according to Ralph E. Ammon, director of the state department of agriculture, will be held at the Outagamie county courthouse at Appleton Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 20. Others will be held at Wausau December 19 and at Madison Dec. 21.

The hearings were inspired by recommendations of the advisory committee on the American cheese industry which was recently formed by the state board of agriculture. The committee and several subcommittees have recently advanced several changes for incorporation into state cheese codes.

The committee proposed to require that all American or Cheddar cheese made in Wisconsin in various styles be marked in three places on the side of each cheese to indicate its grade before it enters retail channels. Cheese sales without the use of state grades would be permitted, but each cheese would be marked plainly with the words "Not Graded" in type at least an inch high, under the proposed regulation.

Another proposed change would require all cheese makers to hold their product at least four days, or until it is sufficiently dry on all surfaces to be fit for paraffining.

Another subcommittee proposed to the board of agriculture that dairy inspectors be required to ascertain at what temperature the farmer cools his milk, and to determine on the plant inspection report what the operator is doing to help the farmer improve his product.

Committee Will Name Demonstration Agent

The county agricultural committee will meet Saturday morning to consider applications for the post of home demonstration agent. Engagement of a demonstration agent was authorized by the county board at its November session. The new agent will begin duties on Jan. 1, according to J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent.

Wheat Stored in Steel Bin for 11 Years Still Good

Shows Safe Storage on Farms Possible, Specialists Say

Wheat stored in a steel bin on a Kansas farm in 1927 and never moved, turned, or fumigated, was in good millable condition when marketed last year, according to a bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent.

The fact is reported by A. F. Swanson wheat specialist of the federal department of agriculture, who obtained a sample of the 11-year-old wheat and found that baking results compared favorably with results from the 1938 crop.

This was not a planned test of storage under scientifically controlled conditions. It merely happened on the Kansas farm of L. P. Montgomery near Clayton. It turned out to be a practical demonstration of safe storage of good wheat under good farm conditions. The steel storage bin was rodent proof and equipped with a conventional ventilation system. The harvest season of 1927 was generally dry in that section, and Mr. Swanson considers that this wheat, harvested with a combine, went into the bin fairly dry and free from insects. There was a wide range of weather afterward, but the grain did not heat or go out of condition.

There have been differences of opinion as to the practical possibilities of wheat storage on the farm. Safe storage, either on the farm or in elevators, is an essential part of the ever-normal granary program. Some have doubted that long-time storage is practical except in elevators where grain can be moved and fumigated or reconditioned. This example of 11-year stor-

Erosion Control Brings Benefits, Officials Report

Practices Not Only Reduce Soil Losses but Improve Crop Conditions

Although rainfall during the last crop season was from four to seven inches below normal in the state, erosion control resulted in marked benefits to farmers employing such practices.

This is the gist of a survey report made by the soil conservation service on farms in soil conservation demonstrations in the state, according to a bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent. Farmers in these communities report that such practices as contour strip-cropping, terracing, and restoration of vegetation on steep, erodible slopes not only reduced soil losses but often improved crop conditions by conserving needed moisture.

The 1939 season was singularly lacking in testing rains—rains of high enough intensities to cause severe run-off and soil washing—according to the report.

At Independence, the heaviest rain reported was a 3-inch down-pour which, however, fell slowly and steadily over a 52-hour period from April 16 to April 18. Little erosion resulted from this rain, even on unprotected fields.

The Fennimore soil conservation demonstration reported "no testing rains" while Coon Valley reported "severe drought conditions during part of the season, due to poor distribution of rainfall."

Greater Losses
Coon Valley reported, however, that soil losses through erosion "noticeably increased" on sloping fields farmed up and down hill than on slopes farmed in contour or "level" round the hill rows.

Similar reports were received from other demonstration areas in the state. The chief value of control practices as listed by farmers and age, say grain specialists, is evidence that safe storage on the farm is possible when conditions are favorable.

Conservation League At Fremont to Elect Officers Thursday

Fremont — The annual meeting of the Fremont Conservation League will be held Thursday evening at the village hall. The annual report will be read by the secretary, Edwin Hammen, and officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

The regular meeting of the Fremont Rural Fire department was held Monday evening in the village hall and was marked by a large attendance. Following the ordinary business session a lunch was served to more than 60 members.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Carstensen were guests Sunday at Fond du Lac at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Dreher.

Oliver Brown went to Green Bay Monday to visit his father, John Brown, at a hospital. The latter was taken ill while employed in Michigan.

Observers was in the "increased absorption of rain" by the soil. Contour rows, terraces, and strip-cropping "cut across the line of flow" of run-off water, slowing it down and causing more of it to soak into the ground, conservation officials explained.

From Fennimore came reports that corn drilled on the contour "stayed green a week longer" than corn checked on sloping land, due apparently to better moisture conditions on contour drilled fields. Yields were "slightly higher" on the contoured fields.

Baseball Drive Gains Momentum

STOCK SHARES $5
Want as Many Subscribers as Possible for Community Project

A RATHER complete organization to interest sports fans in the Appleton team in the Class D Wisconsin State Baseball league, has been effected following a meeting Monday night at Legion hall. Fifty persons gathered around a venison stew, heard talks about the prospects and got enthusiastic for the proposed setup. So far, with only a few persons working, about $250 in cash has been secured together with pledges for approximately $1,000. The group has been promised that when it raises $1,500 to $2,000, from smaller subscribers to the organization, another group will raise at least $1,500 from some of the larger sources. The thought is that the proposed corporation should have a large membership of individuals, that the team be definitely a community affair.

Share Costs $5
Value of the stock is $5 a share and anyone interested in baseball can subscribe. The amount will be collected at this time if possible but the workers will take a subscription and then make collections in February and March when the outlay for the team will make funds necessary. Working men interested in the team and wishing to buy a share of stock can do so at the rate of a dollar now and then, it was said.

Monday's meeting saw Clarence Baetz, the temporary chairman of the organization, briefly explain what had been accomplished in the league and how work was progressing in other cities. He said Wisconsin Rapids had announced its manager and a tie-up with the Chicago White Sox. LaCrosse will be tied up with the Minneapolis team. Sheboygan with the Milwaukee Brewers. Fond du Lac with the Dugres and Green Bay probably with the Giants.

Together with Charles Pond, Baetz, attended the national baseball meeting at Cincinnati. They said Detroit had offered to add the Appleton entry with an agreement whereby Detroit would put up $300 to open the season and $100 at the close. In return Appleton would give Detroit call on its two top players. The manager of the team could be selected by Appleton and the men said they had a line on a likely candidate who came well recommended.

Must Sell Stock
In answer to a comment regarding permanent organization of the corporation, Elmer Honkamp stated that it would be necessary to sell shares of stock in the organization until half the proposed capital was subscribed. Then a meeting of the stockholders would be held and they would make the organization permanent by naming officers.

The suggestion was made that the temporary officers take steps to protect the Detroit interest in the team.

Mayor John Goodland, who with city officers and aldermen was present, commented on what had been done to improve the West Spencer street field where the team will play. He urged the group to be sure of its progress so that nothing would happen to undo the work which had been put into the league and Appleton's entry.

Organization for the financial campaign was set up as follows:

Contractors—Walter Gmeiner.
Coated Paper company employees—Norman Eggert.
Fox River Paper company employees—Capt. and S. Bauman.

Chatter Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

PACKER FOOTBALL FANS in this section are celebrating the championship with gusto and the comment of a New York sports writer that Green Bay isn't a big enough town to support the squad and the league has been forgotten in the enthusiasm.

Also, the assurance of Tim Mara of the New York Giants and George Halas of the Chicago Bears has put the fans at ease. And while Bill Corum's comment may have been a little uncalled for, William isn't so far from wrong in mentioning it. He's late, however, for apparently the shrewd gentlemen who direct the Packers anticipated it several years ago when they tied up state fair park at Milwaukee for 10 years.

When the pro league was in swaddling clothes and crowds of 10 to 15,000 were big crowds, Green Bay could hold its own. But then the crowds in the bigger cities became crowds of 20 to 25,000 and 30,000. To keep pace, the Packers enlarged their plant and took a couple games to Milwaukee where they had greater drawing power. But the question remains, can Green Bay and the immediate vicinity, draw enough people to make it worthwhile for some of the big teams to play at the Bay? This fall the Lions filled the house, the Bears did very well but the Cardinals and Cleveland Rams didn't. The two Milwaukee games attracted large crowds, one the season's biggest for the Bays. But when the time comes that Cleveland can draw better in some other town than Green Bay, then, like the New York Giants, it may refuse to play in Green Bay.

But we're not worrying about the matter. The time may come, if Milwaukee gets a big stadium, when the Packers will play three games in Milwaukee and only three in Green Bay but the Packers will never leave Green Bay while the present group directs its activities. The Northeastern section of the state can support three big games in Green Bay and likewise Milwaukee and the southern section can support three in that vicinity.

So we're going to anticipate a lot more games in the little town in the big league, put our faith in the gentlemen who direct the Packers, and forget about Bill Corum's rather gloomy thoughts.

Incidentally, here are the attendance figures for the league which help bring home the point we've tried to make regarding drawing power.

	East	Season	Biggest

X—Game played in Milwaukee.

Did you know that: Fox River Valley conference football coaches gathered here Monday afternoon and argued football dates for several hours and then went home with the schedule as announced several weeks ago remaining as is. The trouble came when two of the school scheduled games with non-conference opponents and then okayed the conference schedule only to learn the non-conference dates could not be kept because they were too early in the season and banned by W. L. A. rules.

The Superior Oilers of the Wisconsin-Michigan league, who played down here last weekend, didn't do basketball any particular good.

First of all, the team has a squad of about 15 when at home. It came here with five players who could get away from work and drive the 300 miles. It played the Elm Tree Bakers of Appleton in a league game and won. Then it went to Kimberly on Sunday afternoon with the same five and lost. In the evening it played at Hilbert and dropped another game making the Bakers look especially bad. That stuff isn't going to help basketball locally.

U. W. Challenges Eligibility of Lane as Official

Charges He Offered Baseball Contract to Badger Sports Star

MADISON—Dr. William F. Lorenz, University of Wisconsin representative on the Western conference faculty committee in charge of athletics, disclosed yesterday he had formally challenged eligibility of Frank Lane, of Cincinnati, O., for further duty as an official of the Big Ten.

Dr. Lorenz said he demanded an investigation at a committee meeting in Chicago last Saturday after Rawland Hermans, of Middleton, Wis., a Wisconsin student, was banned from Big Ten athletics for life because he signed a contract last season with the Muskogee, Okla., baseball club, a farm unit of the National league Cincinnati Reds.

Hermans, Dr. Lorenz added, was offered the contract by Lane, who, in addition to being a Big Ten football and basketball official is a member of the Cincinnati Red Baseball corporation.

The question of whether Lane violated a conference rule, forbidding its officials to participate in proselytizing or recruiting, will be turned over to Major John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner, for investigation, Dr. Lorenz said.

"The faculty committee voted that if Griffith found Lane was in any way implicated, he was to be expelled from the Western conference official list," he added.

Dr. Lorenz said that Hermans, a fine pitching prospect, basketball player and boxer, did not play in a game with Muskogee, nor did he receive any pay, being sent home with a sore arm during the training season.

LANE DENIES CHARGE
Columbia, S. C.—Frank Lane, whose eligibility as a Big Ten official was challenged because he allegedly offered a baseball contract to a Wisconsin student, denied last night he offered the proposition.

Dr. W. F. Lorenz, Wisconsin Big Ten representative, charged that Lane offered Rawland Hermans a contract with the Muskogee, Okla., baseball club, which led to the student's banishment from Big Ten athletics.

"The student 'had several other offers and he asked us what we would offer him for his services,' Lane said. 'We told him we did not follow a policy of taking boys out of school.'"

He said that he told Hermans that when he finished school "we would be glad to" discuss a contract.

Lane is general manager of the Cincinnati National league's baseball farm organization, of which the Columbia club is a part.

Globe Trotters Walloped By Kimberly Cagers, 50-18

KIMBERLY—The Harlem Globe Trotters were defeated by Buck LeMay's AA cagers Tuesday evening at the clubhouse by a score of 50 to 18.

The visitors could do tricks with the ball but found their magic leaving when they tried for points. Coach Hamann and N. Gossens were tied with 12 points each with Van Dyke following up with 11.

The sharpshooting and floor work of the Papermakers was almost perfect with Hamann leading the attack, controlling rebounds and intercepting the ball before the visitors could form for set plays. Coach LeMay played only a part of the game being content to watch from the bench.

Hofkins started things going by adding a point with Brooks of the visitors coining a bucket. Gossens found the range with Hamann duplicating and Gossens tipped in another on a pass from Van Dyke. Budford was all alone under the payoff station to score but Van Dyke rang up a followup with the quarter ending 9 to 4 for the Papermakers.

The second quarter was a runaway for LeMay's sharp shooters. Vander Velden added two buckets, Van Dyke, one, Gossens three, Hamann, two, and Hofkins, three, before the visitors added a gift by Freeman and a back hand ringer by Budford. The half ended 20 to 8 for Kimberly.

In the third period, the Papermakers eased up considerably, scoring seven points to the visitors' nine. Budford of the Harlems was a scoring threat for his squad being small but, fast and shifty. The last period had the visitors pretty much all in with the Papermakers scoring practically at will.

A good sized crowd witnessed the contest and had a few good laughs at the colored boys' antics. But the visitors soon cut out this performance when the Papermakers began to pull away.

The Kimberly A.A. Reserves were defeated by Sturgeon Bay Merchants by a score of 31 to 22. The Merchants had everything their way in the first quarter gaining 15 points to 2 for the home club. The Reserves narrowed the gap by half time to 23 to 13 and were seven points behind at the close of the third period, 27 to 20.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULT

Menasha St. Mary 33, St. John 20.

BY RANDY HAASE

MENASHA—St. Mary's High school cagers ran their string of victories to four straight in the Fox Valley Catholic conference. Tuesday night when they trounced the St. John's of Little Chute team 33 to 20 at St. Mary's gymnasium.

The Zephyrs are alone in first place in the conference standings. All other teams of the conference have at least one defeat each except the St. Norbert High school team of DePere which does not open its conference season until Friday. The defeat was the first of the year for the Little Chute team.

Johnson, Resch and Griesbach paced the Zephyr scoring with four field goals each. Johnson added three free throws to total 11 points and top honors for the night. Resch was second with 10 and Griesbach had nine. For Little Chute C. Vandenhuevel had eight points and H. Vandenhuevel had three field goals.

The Flying Dutchmen had a 1 to 0 lead early in the game when C. Vandenhuevel made a free throw on Griesbach's foul. Griesbach came right back with a basket to give the Zephyrs a lead they never surrendered. In fact, they stretched it to 10 points by the end of the half and then maintained that margin and more in the last half.

In the first quarter Burghardt and Resch collected goals in addition to the opener by Griesbach and Resch added a free throw. H. Vandenhuevel scored on a long shot but the Zephyrs led 7 to 3 at the quarter.

Zephyrs Increase Lead
The Menasha team lost no time in adding to its margin in the second quarter. Johnson counted two free throws and a basket before C. Vandenhuevel tossed one in from the side to make the score 11 to 5. Johnson came back with a successful shot only to have C. Vandenhuevel repeat his push shot from the side and the Zephyrs led 13 to 7.

William Resch then started hitting the basket and counted on two successive shots but Nault dropped a long set shot to make the score 17 to 9. Griesbach batted in a rebound at the end of the half to give the Zephyrs a 19 to 9 margin.

McGabe opened the second half scoring with a long basket, but again the Zephyrs started rolling. Schuller scored on a free throw and Griesbach was on the receiving end of a neat bit of passing and teamwork and dropped in a basket. Nault and C. Vandenhuevel scored Turn to Page 10

M Vandehy topped a 215 game and E. Farka cleared 833 series for individual honors during Women's National league matches at Elks alleys last night. Sunnyside Florals turned in top team totals of 831 and 2,442.

Sunnyside kieggers made it three straight over Al's Bar to stay in a tie for the league lead. E. Farka led the way with a 195 game and her 533 series. High for the losers was D. Gehrke with a 185 game and 505 total.

Pond Sport Shop grand slammed Pratts Tavern to retain its share of first place and knock the latter out of a lead deadlock. G. Koerner whipped a 505 series and K. Engler counted 192 for the winners. High for the losers was R. Moen with a 173 game and 472 series.

Ellyn's Beauty Shop took two games from Van Dyck Coal company as E. Beck totaled 518 and M. Sankowsky singled 201 for the winners. Topp for the losers was R. Ashman with a 209 game and 470 series.

Bear Creek Easy For Clintonville

Auctioneers Too Tall; Losers Score in 4th Period Against Reserves

Clintonville — The Clintonville Auctioneers had little trouble disposing of Bear Creek last night at the armory, 23 to 19, in a Central Wisconsin tilt. The score was one-sided until the last quarter when Bear Creek put on a spirited drive against the Auctioneers' second string and hung up 13 points to Clintonville's 2.

Play started slowly, the Auctioneers took an early lead and at the end of the first quarter were ahead 5 to 3. In the second quarter, the Auctioneers put on the heat and Bear Creek wasn't allowed an open shot at the basket while the Clintonville quintet took an 11 to 4 lead at the intermission. The third quarter netted the Auctioneers 10 points while the invaders scored 2. In the fourth quarter, against the second string, Bear Creek started to connect.

The Clints had a definite advantage over Bear Creek in height and shooting. The starting lineup for the Auctioneers consisting of Ray Knitt and Rollic Kersten at forwards, Bill Melzer and Slat Grefzinger at guards and Sid Felts at center averaged well over six feet with Kersten being the only one below the six foot mark. Clintonville's height gave it a few additional points on rebounds with Felts and Kersten contributing. Felts was high scorer for the winners with three baskets for six points and was followed by Ray Knitt and Rollic Kersten each with five markers on two buckets and one charity toss. Knitt's five points also put him on top of the scorers in the Central Wisconsin league. John Morarity, former Jordan college star, was high point man for the losers with three baskets and two gift shots for eight points.

Report Davey O'Brien Got $18,000 from Eagles

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK —(7)—Fordham has been voted the best-dressed football team in the country. One of the Southwest conference teams is shopping for a coach in the Big Six. Death of Doug Fairbanks recalls his all-time sports hero was Bobby Jones, the one and only. Them as was there at the signing say Davey O'Brien's Philadelphia Eagle contract called for $18,000 per—folding money in any league.

Majoring and Minor
Too bad Gilbert and Sullivan are not alive and operating. They would have had a field day at the baseball pow wow. After the joint meeting of the two big leagues, for instance, when Judge Landis and the American league teamed up to rout the Nationals, they might have had the N. L. magnates chiding the judge by singing:

"It is patent to the mob That his being a nob Was effected by a job" And the American leaguers chiming in with: "And a good job, too."

The Smith brothers (not the back, back boys) are doing all right at Minnesota. Bruce is the soph football flash and Don the soph basketball sensation. Bernie Bierman is denying he's had feelings from Vanderbilt, but what's that in his cheek—his tongue or that you know—what chewing tobacco? British football players are threatening to strike unless their pay is raised from 10 shillings (about two bucks to you) per game.

Today's Guest Star
Art Cohn, Oakland Tribune: "Latest recruit in the 'm-gon-na-punch-Cohn-in-the-nose army' is Ernie Lombardi, the 1939 Rip Van Winkle. Don't over-match yourself, Ernie. Heck, you couldn't hit 300—even in the National league."

Personal intelligence: Ed Boell, the N.Y.U. passer is ready to turn pro at the drop of a hat. Joe Louis popped in to re-ferre some amateur bouts and popped right out to second Holman Williams against Izzy Janazzo at Scranton tonight. Frank Dobson's next coaching stop will be the Newport News (Va.) apprentice school. The sailors weren't napping on that one.

How?
And it was only a year ago, recalls Ed Scamnell in the Worcester (Mass.) Evening Gazette, that Dr. Eddie Anderson's pals were sympathizing with him for quitting Holy Cross and going to Iowa.

Adler Brau won the odd game from Woolworth's as H. Glasnap hit 322 and M. J. Butler counted 194. Tups for the losers were M. Gengler with a 212 game and R. Koltisch with a 511 series.

Schaefer Dairy took two games from Elks Ladies as A. Staerkel counted 474 and M. Hantschel singled 169. A. Gritzmacher paced the losers with a 514 series, D. Ebbgen showing a 186 game.

Gloudehans Gage downed Voigt's Drugs in two games as O. Thyssen grooved 503. L. Schuldt highed for the losers with a 479 total.

Verstegen smacked a 242 game and a 547 series to set the individual pace during Women's American league matches at Elks alleys last night. Adler Brau monopolized team honors with an 820 game and a 2,366 series.

Geenen's grand slammed O. R. Kloehe company as B. Verstegen banged her high marks. High for the losers was R. Wunderlich with a 189 game and 492 series.

It's Same Old Story: N. Y. Yankees Again are Picked As the Outstanding Team

BY SID FEDER
NEW YORK —(7)—The boss always said to put the news at the top of the story, so this first paragraph is hardly the place to tell you the country's sports experts picked the New York Yankees of baseball the No. 1 team of fall 1939 sports.

Rather, it's the spot to explain that the experts, balloting in the ninth annual Associated Press poll had a tough time deciding whether Iowa's comebacking football Hawkeyes, or the undefeated teams of Southern California, Tennessee and Cornell, rated the No. 2 slot. They finally gave it to Iowa, with 371 points to 34 for the Pacific coast conference champions; 33 for the other half of the Rose Bowl, Tennessee, and 28 for Cornell.

Yet the combined vote for these four gridiron powers was only slightly more than half the total the Yankees rolled up in winning recognition as "outstanding team of the year, amateur or professional" for the fourth straight year, just as easily as they skyrocketed to their fourth straight world championship with a woeful walloping of the Cincinnati Reds in October.

Sixty-one of the 79 experts who cast ballots from all parts of the country picked the Yankees as undisputed No. 1 team. Another split his ticket between the Yankees and the Hawkeyes. Thirteen others put the Yankees in second place. There were only four who didn't mention them.

Score is Lopsided
On a basis of 1,000 points for a first-place nomination, two for second and one for third, the Yankees ran up the tremendous total of 2114 points for the most lopsided edge in the nine-year history of the poll. Not only did it give the Yankees their fourth straight win, but it gave baseball a record of eight straight years of boasting the country's leading team. Not since the first poll back in '31, when Southern California's football Trojans won over the St. Louis Cardinals, has any except the world series baseball winner been voted the award.

Of the 17 first-place selections in which the Yankees did not figure this year, seven went to Iowa's footballers, two to Southern California, three to Tennessee, two to Cornell and one each to the basketball teams of Oregon and Ohio State and to the footballers of Pennsylvania State college.

As a sport, football led all the rest, with nine college and professional teams being nominated. The Green Bay Packers, National Professional grid champs, were in 12th place with 7 points. The Texas Aggies, heading for the Sugar Bowl, were sixth on the list with 18 points.

Basketball drew six nominees, headed by the University of Oregon's champions in seventh place with 12 points. Baseball had four on the list and crew, three. Southern California was mentioned twice, in track as well as football. One high school outfit, the Franklin, Ind., basketball team, got one vote.

U. W. CAGE BRIEFS

Charles Epperson is one of the best shots on the squad. He is big and fast and is a good rebound man. However, it is doubtful if he will come along fast enough this fall to see much action. As he is the only sophomore forward on the squad, Coach Foster is expecting great things of him in future years.

I. Isenberg topped a 226 game and H. Gygi totaled 530 to share individual honors during Teachers League matches at Arcade alleys last evening. High School counted a high team game of 952 and Wilson showed a high team series of 2,450.

Institute went into a tie for first place with a 2-game win over Vocational as Isenberg counted his 226 game and a 520 series. High for the losers was Notebaart with a 173 game and 492 series.

Wilson made it three straight over Neenah No. 2 as Enger rolled a 203 game and 511 series. High for the losers were Gerhardt with a 174 game and Gundlach with a 438 total. Neenah No. 1 lost its lone hold on first place in losing two games to Morgan school. Nock thumped a 502 and Elder showed a 176 for the winners while Poellinger mainstay-ed the losers with a 200 game and 513 series.

High School took two games from College as Gygi counted 208 and 530. Douglas grooved 203 and Mills showed 469 for the losers.

Scouts Report Outstanding Backs and Fast, Strong Line

Los Angeles —(AP)—Southern California scouts who watched Tennessee play its last two games have made their reports, and the verdict, as Southern California announces it, is that the Volunteers should whip the men of Troy in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Jan. 1.

George Levinson, former Northwestern University quarterback who has been scouting Notre Dame for the Trojans, watched Tennessee clinch the Rose Bowl bid last week by defeating Auburn, 7-0. His charts, diagrams and comments were under scrutiny by head coach Howard Jones and his assistants. Jeff Cravath, one of Jones' lieutenants, says Levinson's reports show that Tennessee's offense is built along the general lines of the Trojans' but differs just enough to worry the S.C. staff in trying to build a competent defense.

The Vols use a single wingback to the right or left, but from a balanced line, and run reverses and spinners, although the team does not shift. Like the Trojans, say S.C. coaches, Tennessee had three inside ball packers, Catego, Butler and Warren. Said Levinson in his report: "Tennessee is a big team with speed, deception and lots of durability. They are not unlike Notre Dame in that Coach Bob Neyland uses a system which is in part Notre Dame and part the same single wingback to the right or left, that Southern California depends upon. "The reason for the current success of Tennessee, as well as in 1938, when they also were unbeaten, is the great speed of a big line, topped by the work of Ed Molinski and Bob Suffridge. The backs work from behind a balanced line that generates immense drive and is very efficient in its blocking and charging."

Picard Finds Pro Competition Keen

Too Many Youngsters Coming Up, He Says; Preps for Miami Open

MIAMI, Fla. —(AP)—Take it from Henry Picard, who should know the big time tournament golfing grind is getting tougher each year. "More and more good young golfers with fire and ambition are knocking at the door," said Picard, P. G. A. champion and the year's top golfer to date. "The leaders dare not get out of condition or trip even a trifle for fear of getting trampled in the stampede."

He was on the practice green rapping in putts, trying for the delicate touch he will need in the $10,000 Miami open starting tomorrow. There may have been a time, Picard said, when a top golfer could dissipate before a tournament and still win.

"That was because the competition wasn't nearly as keen," he asserted. "The stars were so much better than the rest of the golfers that they could waste a few shots and still win. We can't do that nowadays—especially the ones of us who are slowing down somewhat physically."

Not only are there more tournaments, the P. G. A. king declared, but the number of playing pros has more than doubled in the last 10 years—from about 200 to more than 500—which means that the competition is something fierce.

Hilbert High Trips Shiocton, 18 to 13

Hilbert — Hilbert High school cagers defeated Shiocton here last night, 18 to 13, in a non-conference game. The teams are members of the Little Nine but are not in the same division.

Hilbert jumped off to a 7 to 1 lead which was 9 to 7 at the half. In the third quarter it was 18 to 10. The first half was well played but the second saw loose ball handling and poor passing.

Shiocton reserves won a 16 to 7 victory over Hilbert reserves.

NEW YORK —(AP)—The double feature still may be a headache to movie magnates, but to college basketball it is about the biggest innovation since the introduction of level floors.

And it's a growing young giant of an idea that may sweep the country—like bingo. Basketball fans are demanding twice as much basketball a night as they used to get.

Hollywood—Far be it from me to belittle Garbo, but I'm getting woefully fed up with all the praise that's being lavished on her glamorous head because of "Ninotchka." To hear the Hollywood chorus, you'd think no one else had anything to do with that triumph—that Garbo the Great, Garbo the Wonderful, Garbo the Incomparable, did it all.

As a matter of fact, Garbo, being perfectly cast, did turn in a fine performance—as good an acting job, let's say, as any one of about twenty other very capable actresses could have achieved in that same role. But, confidentially, she didn't write those hilarious dialogue lines that had us all holding our sides. She didn't conceive that ultra-clever plot or design those sparkling situations. Garbo, strange as it may seem, didn't even direct the production.

Ever hear of a man named Melchior Lengyel? No? Well, don't feel too badly about it—I've asked three sub-execs at MGM the same question, and they hadn't heard of him either. Mr. Lengyel—a European playwright with a long list of successes to his credit—merely wrote the story. Then there's a man named Ernst Lubitsch, who strange to relate, has had a lot to do with many screen hits as big, though Garbo-less, as "Ninotchka." He directed.

All kidding aside—let's admit that Garbo's terrific. But

Leslie Jenner Is President Of Waupaca School Organization

Waupaca — One of the more recently organized clubs of the high school is the Camera club which began its existence with an enrollment of 36 members. Its officers are Leslie Jenner, president; Charles Law, vice president; and Kenneth Emmerichs, secretary.

At its second meeting, each member brought his camera and explained its workings to the group. Cameras were of all varieties, ranging from the candid to the large 5 by 7 plate back type.

The club is at present divided into two groups, one interested in the chemical angle, and the other in photography. Miss Gertrude Knudsen is the club's adviser.

On Thursday of this week various pictures of high school groups are to be taken by members of the club.

An innovation to the school system is the boys' cooking club under the direction of Miss Ruth Howison, home economics instructor. Since the boys could accomplish so little in the half-hour period allotted, they decided to meet every Thursday at the close of the fourth period, carry it through the noon hour and also the activity period. They bring their lunches from home and are informed beforehand what they are to attempt to cook, to insure a well-balanced meal.

Oshkosh All-Stars

Finally Win a Game

Ripon —(AP)—Snapping a long losing streak, the Oshkosh All-Stars of the National Professional Basketball league scored a 32 to 31 victory over the New York Renaissance after being forced into an overtime period here last night.

Witasek of Oshkosh sent the game into an extra period when his basket knotted the score at 30-all just before the gun. Then Bell countered with a free throw that put the Reds momentarily in the lead before Barle pulled the game out of the fire with a short basket.

Barle was high scorer for Oshkosh with seven points, while Gates paced the Reds with 11. The Reds had defeated Oshkosh, 30 to 17, in an exhibition at Waukesha Monday.

Pegler Won't Forgive Bolos Even Though They Recant Now

Washington —(AP)—Excuse, please, but I want to get the straight of this all-is-forgiveness attitude toward those sneaks who not long ago were either comrades of Josef Stalin or fellow travelers, but had a sudden change of heart about the time of the Berlin-Moscow alliance. Some of our heavy-duty thinkers seem to believe that they will be sadder but wiser and much more reliable Americans from now on. I want to know what makes anyone think so, because so far as I know Stalin hasn't changed and his stuff is still the same.

Now, to be sure, Stalin did stab the Poles in the back while Hitler was mauling them around in a terribly one-sided contest, but, after all, these bolos of ours had always said communism was a blessing to any people whom it happened to infect, and it would seem that Stalin just delivered his part of Poland from the capitalistic oppressors.

What wrong can any sincere Communist or traveler see in that? Similarly, what is the objection to the spread of this boon to Finland?

Certainly it will be necessary to kill off a few hundred thousand or possibly upward of a million Poles and Finns before the great effort for human betterment really begins to show results, but that happened in Russia and that happened in Finland, and that happened in the United States to have a revolution here, with a lot of shooting in the streets, a lot of factory fires and explosions and a lively program of lynchings and similar Soviet sports.

That kind of thing was all right for the American nation, but the minute comrade Stalin puts his beautiful scheme of deliverance into effect in Poland and throws a few bombs on the Finns indignation runs high among the American crummies, and they desert Stalin, and want to be readmitted to American citizenship, so to speak.

They Knew What The Stalin System Meant But they knew all about what Stalinism was, and in view of this fact they cannot have been surprised at his methods, and certainly have no ground to object to the spread of the lovely thing to other lands.

In our own country they were doing the preparatory work as well as they could. They would try to kill off jobs for workmen by imposing impossible conditions on employers, so that the plants would fold up and the men would lose their jobs and finally riot.

They raised all the devilment they could in a thousand open and treacherous ways—all with the ultimate purpose of: upsetting the power of the American government so that at the psychological moment the Communists could rise and rule.

Why Worry About Finland If Bolshevism Is So Hot That was the kind of people they were then, and nothing that they have said since the Berlin-Moscow thing indicates that they have changed in the slightest degree. They are sorry for Poland and Finland, if I get the idea, because Stalin has tried to give them the very thing which they, the bolos, wanted to inflict on the United States—their own country.

What is the matter? Is this beautiful bolshevism too good for the Poles and Finns? Is it still considered to be a wonderful thing for Americans? And if not, why not?

Dictators Discussed

At Waupaca Meeting

Waupaca — Mrs. James Carew and Miss Sophia Kurkowski were in charge of the regular session of the Monday Night Club at the library club rooms Monday evening. Mrs. Carew discussed seven of the dictators of Latin America and was followed by Miss Kurkowski, who spoke on two of the dictators of Mexico.

Betty Carew entertained with two piano selections, an arrangement of "At Dawning" by Cadman and "Puck" by Vivian Bard.

Council Makes No Change in City's Tax Rate for 1940

Third Ward Will Pay $33 Per Thousand, Other Sections $35

New London — The same tax rate as last year, $33 per thousand for taxpayers of Outagamie county in the Third ward and $35 per thousand for the rest of the city in Waupaca county, was adopted for 1940 by the common council at an adjourned meeting at the city hall last night.

Borrowing of $10,000 from the city light and water utility was authorized by the city fathers to carry the city through the remainder of this year. The loan was made necessary, it was explained by Mayor E. W. Wendlandt, by the holding up of anticipated state aids in the amount of $7,800 and the unplanned-for payment last summer of the Allen park purchase in full of $9,500 to reduce interest costs. The loan will be repaid with the first incoming taxes.

A budget of $255,055, only $3,364 greater than this year, was adopted for 1940 with very few changes in appropriations. With a net decrease of $324 in the assessed valuation, the increased budget will be largely offset by an increase of $3,298 in anticipated income. Total revenue by taxes and other income was figured at $255,029, leaving a deficiency of $26.

Assessed valuation of properties in the Third ward showed a decrease of $3,040 at $954,540 and an increase of $2,716 in Waupaca county at $2,647,772. Monies raised by taxes will amount to $31,499 in Outagamie county and $128,220 in Waupaca county, total of $159,719 or $6 less than this year. Expected income was set at $95,283 compared to $91,965 this year.

An increased outlay for relief, streets, schools and police totaling approximately $12,000 was offset by a drop of $5,855 in county tax levies and $5,675 lopped off general outlays. Practically all other departmental expenditures showed little or no change and were budgeted closely after last year's outline.

Streets came in for the greatest increase, $1,977 with an allotment of $26,475. Greatest single change was the insertion of $2,000 for street oiling which is intended to be paid for out of the general fund next year.

More for Relief
Relief drew an increase of $3,040 over this year. The lump sum of $4,000 was added for actual relief, increasing the amount available to $29,000. Department salaries were increased $100 to $2,100 and the allowance for incidentals and other advances was cut down.

The board of education asked and received an additional $2,970 over this year, bringing the total school budget to $78,850. The board estimates $27,900 of this will be offset by school incomes which is included elsewhere in the budget under other income.

The police department was granted an increased budget of $989. The sum of $1,000 was allotted extra to the cemetery fund to eventually pay for the installation of a water system to Floral Hill cemetery and wood cutting costs for next year were boosted $1,000 to an item of $4,000.

General government, health, public buildings, parks and recreations will follow approximately the same budget as this year.

The city fathers voted approval of a suggestion by Alderman William L. Lits that the aldermen be provided regularly with a quarterly report of the expenditures and current status of each department to better guide in the disposal of funds during the course of the year.

Contracts providing easement rights over the P. A. Morien and Charles Krenke properties on Bruce street for the Third ward sewer project were authorized and the claim of Clifford Plowman for $87.50 for refund unused tavern license fees was allowed.

Cagers Drill for Battle at Neenah

Coach Isaacson Stressing Defense in Practices This Week

New London — Well fortified by three opening victories and advance reports of their strength, New London High school cagers will invade Neenah Friday night to test the sudden power of the Rockets who were rated the dark-horse in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference race before the season opened and have since defeated Appleton and Kaukauna.

The Red and White will be away from home the next two weeks, traveling to Shawano on Dec. 22. How they fare against these two top-notch contenders will decide their reception by home fans when they return to the local floor for the annual alumni game on Dec. 26.

The squad improved its work on rebounds and jump-balls since the Green Bay game and Coach Harold Isaacson is stressing defensive work and shooting this week. The quint has shown a good eye for the hoop, getting seven and eight out of ten free throws in the last two games.

Both A and B squads will make the trip, and barring illness, all members will be on deck. The Bees will play a preliminary with the Neenah fledglings.

School Paper Issued By Shiocion Students

Shiocion — The fifth number of the local high school paper, Chief Shio, has been issued with David Brooker as editor-in-chief, Sylvia Hall, assistant, and Miss Dorothy Grehn, adviser.

The Modern Priscillas of the Shiocion High school were invited to attend a plate supper Tuesday evening at Seymour, given for them by the Modern Priscillas of Seymour.

The sophomore home economics class is studying a craft unit. Members are making ash trays, foot-stools and flower holders from tin cans, to be used as Christmas gifts. They are also making hot pads from cork and designing Christmas cards and studying wrapping.

The junior girls have been choosing their material for their Christmas dresses. Plaids in bright colors seem to be the choice of most of the girls.

The Girls' Glee club and high school orchestra are practicing selections to be given at the Christmas party under the community tree Wednesday evening, Dec. 20. The tree has been erected and will be lighted for the coming three weeks.

Kees, Anton Loehr, Russell Gasch, and Elmer Propson. Lunch and refreshments were served.

Banns of marriage were announced for the first time Sunday at St. John Catholic church for Miss Mary Gac, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Gac of St. John, and Nicholas Rath, St. John. The wedding will take place on Wednesday, Dec. 27, at St. John's Catholic church, St. John.

The annual meeting of the Wide-A-Wake 4-H club was held Wednesday evening at Spoer's hall with an election of new officers: President, Miss Anita Schreiner, the first club girl to be elected president; vice president, Florian Schmidt; secretary, Miss Lorraine Schmidt, and treasurer, William Erdman. Miss Janet Fees was appointed the club reporter for the coming year.

All club members who have completed the year's project were awarded achievement pins. The new social committee decided to sponsor a party for the club members in connection with the next meeting of the club which will be held at Spoer's hall Jan. 3.

The following were awarded prizes at the card party which was given by the Christian Mothers of Sacred Heart church Sunday evening at the school hall: Schafskopf, Mrs. John Hartzheim and John Brantmeier, and skat to Joseph Deschler. Lunch and refreshments were served.

ALL steering column gearshifts look a more or less alike. . . . But only Chevrolet's New Exclusive Vacuum-Power Shift acts for itself when you touch the lever. . . . Only this one advanced steering column gearshift is 80% automatic in operation!

You see, Chevrolet's New Exclusive Vacuum-Power Shift has a hidden power cylinder. And this power cylinder goes into action the instant you start to shift gears. It does 80% of the work for you instead of letting you push and tug and do all the work yourself!

You want the newest and best—the best in driving and riding ease, the best in styling and road-action—and on all these counts "Chevrolet's FIRST Again!"

—and only Chevrolet's Exclusive Vacuum-Power Shift has a hidden power cylinder which does 80% of the gearshifting work for you!

Why shift for yourself? Why do it the hard way? Chevrolet's Exclusive Vacuum-Power Shift is controlled from the steering column by an extra-short lever—its end right under the rim of the steering wheel, within easy finger reach. The only effort required of the driver is to move the lever, the vacuum cylinder supplies the effort required to move the shifter forks and gears within the transmission. Instead of supplying all the effort of shifting, the driver supplies only one-fifth: the compact, simple vacuum mechanism, positive and unfailing in operation, does the rest.

K-C Corporation Building $20,000 Bridge Over Canal

Construction of 100-Foot Span Gets Underway This Week

Neenah — Construction of a bridge which will cost between $18,000 and $20,000 over the canal from the Kimberly-Clark corporation property to N. Church street got underway this week.

The bridge, which will be constructed of concrete, is being erected by the Kimberly-Clark corporation, and is a part of a proposed extensive expansion program.

Besides the span, which will be about 100 feet long and 24 feet wide with 5-foot sidewalks on each side, a retaining wall will be constructed on the Kimberly-Clark side of the canal.

The wall will be about 400 feet long, and it will be built in the canal so that the space between the wall and the shore can be filled in, furnishing more parking property. The wall will be as far as 60 feet from the shore, and in some places, it will be only 20 feet. The canal line at this point is irregular.

The Fluor Brothers Construction company, Oshkosh, the firm which constructed Neenah's swimming pool and recreation building, the Neenah Boys' Brigade gymnasium, as well as several other projects in Neenah, is the contractor for the job.

The contractors started work this week on excavation for the bridge abutment at the N. Church street end, and it is expected that concrete for the abutment will be poured by the end of this week. An abutment will be constructed on the Kimberly-Clark side and a concrete pier will be built in the center of the canal. The canal is about 10 feet deep.

Runways for the retaining wall are now under construction. As soon as the south abutment is completed, a temporary runway will be constructed to the center of the canal. A steel coffer dam will be built in the center of the waterway for pouring of concrete for the pier. Steel coffer dams have been constructed for the abutments.

The contractors anticipate that the project will require about three months to complete. Large steel beams will be placed in the concrete of the bridge, and the roadway will be constructed of reinforced slab.

Will Provide Outlet The purpose of the span is to furnish an outlet for Kimberly-Clark traffic other than the N. Commercial street driveway. It will relieve traffic congestion on N. Commercial street at the change of shifts and it also will furnish a closer and more direct route for Kimberly-Clark trucks and cars traveling between the main office and Badger-Globe mill to the Lakeview mill.

If the proposed expansion program which is being considered by Kimberly-Clark is carried out, the bridge then will be absolutely necessary.

With the exception of $2,000, the corporation is financing the entire project. The city council recently purchased the plot of land between the canal and the end of N. Church street from the Winnebago Realty company and will put it over to the Kimberly-Clark corporation.

O. S. Swenson, 55, Menasha, Is Dead

Jeweler Operated Business Here Last Thirty Years

Menasha — O. S. Swenson, 55, 460 Milwaukee street, Menasha business man for 30 years, died at 8:30 last night at the Theda Clark hospital. He underwent an operation last Wednesday.

Swenson operated a jewelry store at the same location on Main street the last 30 years. He was born March 12, 1884 at Stoughton, Wis., and lived at Oshkosh before moving to Menasha. He was a member of the Elks, Odd Fellows, Knights Templar and Eastern Star.

Survivors are the widow; two brothers, Helmer, Stoughton; Raymond, Burlington; and two sisters, Miss Lovena Swenson and Mrs. V. F. Brown, Madison.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Laemmrich funeral home with the Rev. Gerald Churchill of the First Congregational church in charge. Burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery. The body is at the funeral home.

Boys Brigade Group Holds Question Bee

Neenah — A question bee was conducted by Earl Williams' twelfth grade group at a meeting of the Neenah Boys' Brigade last night at the Boys' Brigade building. Werner Fahl won first place, R. Doughty second.

Winnebago County's Accident Toll Tops Figure for Last Year

Oshkosh — With three weeks to go, Winnebago county has recorded 26 more accidents, 53 additional injured persons and 149 more damaged cars in 1939 than in 1938, Floyd L. Wright, county safety head, reports. The first week of December, 1939, shows a substantial decrease in traffic accidents compared to the corresponding period one year ago. The current month has been responsible for 10 less accidents and 10 less damaged cars than the same period of 1938. An additional death and two additional injuries mark this long bright spot, however.

Flash Signs are Recommended for Fatal Crossing

Traffic Engineer Suggests Lighted Warnings at Highway 150 and 41

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh — E. J. O'Meara, state traffic engineer, recommended flash or stop signs on Highway 150 at the intersection with Superhighway 41 and a "slow" sign of the reflector type on 41 near Neenah after a meeting of the Winnebago county highway committee this morning.

The meeting was held at the request of Neenah and Menasha taxpayers following the accident last week in which N. G. Remmel, a former Menasha mayor, was fatally hurt. The citizens' committee about a year ago demanded an automatic stop light for the intersection but the request was refused.

Henry Schultz, Neenah supervisor, told the committee and the state representatives that the citizens' committee wanted adequate protection at the intersection or it would go directly to Governor Heil for action.

The flasher signs will replace the present arterial stop signs on 150 and the "slow" sign on 41 will further protect motorists, O'Meara told the committee. D. F. Culbertson, Green Bay division engineer for the state highway department, was present at the meeting.

WHERE SOVIETS ADVANCE IN FINLAND As Finland admitted the advances of Russian troops, it was also announced that the Soviet troops had suffered heavy losses in making their gains. Conflicting claims established the occupied territory as about equivalent to the shaded area at right. Military observers said Russian strategy apparently was to cut the country crosswise at its narrowest point. The city of Salla was reported burned by Red forces as they drove toward Kemi. Finns said they wiped out three Russian companies at Ilomantsi, near Enso, and repulsed attacks on Tolvajarvi while withdrawing from Pitkaranta, a rail terminal.

Aldermen Change Zoning Ordinance To Permit Grocery

Reverse Recommendation Of Plans Commission on Fourth Ward Problem

Menasha — The Menasha council reversed the recommendation of the planning commission Tuesday night and voted to change the zoning ordinance to permit construction of a grocery store at the intersection of Appleton road and Seventh street.

The question has been referred to the council at various times during the last month. The change was requested by Albert Peterson, Neenah, who has an option on the Bagerfeind estate. Peterson offered to deed the city 66 feet of land necessary for the opening of Manitowish street to Appleton road. In return he wanted the city to change the zoning ordinance and also to excavate, build a foundation and move an old building on the property which is directly in line with the proposed street opening.

Walter Bauerfeind, representing the estate, pointed out that improvements costing from $1,000 to $1,500 are necessary in the home, including sewer and water. If the city waits with opening the street until after the house is improved the cost will be greater. Six grocery owners entered a protest against changing the zoning ordinance with the planning commission but 27 property owners of that vicinity signed a petition requesting the change.

Alderman Edward Zeining pointed out the cost of waiting in opening of the street and advised a committee of the whole meeting to give further consideration to the change. Alderman Scanlon declared that it would be of benefit to the entire city to open the street at a reasonable cost now although he said he did not favor changing the zoning ordinance for the benefit of one individual. Alderman W. O'Brien objected that the planning commission should be upheld.

Vote is 8 to 2. On motion of Alderman John R. Pinkerton the council voted eight to two to change the zoning ordinance. Aldermen William DeBruin and Walter O'Brien voted against the change. By the same vote the aldermen agreed to accept the proposition of Mr. Peterson. O'Brien objected that constructing a store on the triangle formed by the intersection of Seventh street, Appleton road, and the proposed extension of Manitowish street would form a traffic hazard.

Referenced in his letter to the council, agreed to build a modern store and also agreed to place a clause in the deed stating that the property never will be used as a tavern. The city attorney is to draw up the agreement.

The Neenah-Menasha sewerage commission returned $2,000 to the Menasha council as the Menasha share of the unused surplus from 1938. The letter also stated that there will be a similar surplus returned shortly after the end of 1939.

Alderman Scanlon objected to cars parked around the city triangle while the decorations are lighted and the police department was instructed to forbid parking. On motion of Alderman Zeining operation of the city rinks was left to the mayor and street committee.

Unusual Number of Successes On Broadway, Cloak Tells Club

Neenah — A small number of openings but a large number of successes is the record of New York legitimate productions this season, F. Theodore Cloak, professor of speech and dramatics at Lawrence college, told members of the Women's Tuesday club yesterday afternoon at the Neenah Public library as he said that 17 good plays on Broadway is extraordinary.

Listing among the plays, Key Largo starring Paul Muni, Ladies and Gentlemen starring Helen Hayes, Life With Father, The Man Who Came to Dinner, Skylark starring Gertrude Lawrence, Time of Your Life, The World We Make, Margin for Error and Mornings' at Seven, together with the musical comedies, Pins and Needles, Too Many Girls, DuBarry was a Lady and Swingin' a Dream. Mr. Cloak gave brief comments on each show and the critics' rating together with the public's apparent rating by virtue of attendance.

Although the attendance has been poor, Mr. Cloak commented favorably on the road shows which have been at Appleton, giving people an opportunity to see good plays with good casts.

Mr. Cloak also discussed theater union troubles, outlining briefly the causes and cures for recent New York and Hollywood theater difficulties.

Mrs. James Fritzen, president, announced that the next meeting of the club would be Jan. 9, 1940 at which time, Dr. M. M. Bober, Lawrence college would be guest lecturer.

Neenah PTA Hears Panel Discussion Of School Sports

Officials, Teachers, Parents Participate in Program

Neenah—The most interesting discussion on the physical education program of Neenah Public Schools took place in the corridors and in the cafeteria following the Neenah Parent-Teacher association meeting Tuesday evening at which a panel discussion on the topic featured the program.

A small group of parents and most of the faculty members attended the meeting at which John Holzman, principal of Neenah High School, Ole Jorgensen, physical education instructor, Charles Velt, board member, Harold Meyer, parent, and Arthur C. Haselov, president of the PTA, were the speakers on the subject of Neenah's physical education program.

Declaring that it was a healthy sign when parents and teachers came together to discuss that part of the school program known as the physical education activities, Mr. Holzman opened the discussion with a brief resume of the development of physical education.

Purposes Doubted
The purpose of education dovetails with the purpose of the physical education program, Mr. Holzman pointed out and he stated that in physical education the aim is the health of the student. The school is understaffed and under-equipped for a full program however, he said, since juniors and seniors do not get formal physical education work and all students do not get enough corrective work in the program.

Over 85 per cent of the boys in Neenah schools are participating in intramural activities and about 5 per cent are participating in extra-curricular but non-athletic activities. The aim of the Neenah school is to get all students interested in some extra-curricular activity. The emphasis on extra-curricular work is placed upon basic studies, but because such interest develops the student to a well-balanced personality, Mr. Holzman stated.

Mr. Jorgensen said physical education programs are the least understood because many people have the idea that physical education is the football and basketball teams because that is what they see.

"The Neenah physical education program has three phases: physical education program, required by law, which is met throughout the grades but not completely in the high school because of lack of equipment and lack of instructors; intramural program which is within the school itself and the interscholastic program, competition in sports between schools.

Outlines Program
These aims are met in the physical education program, Mr. Jorgensen pointed out, through a system of weighing, testing, measuring and physical exams through fall, through winter and spring programs which climax in a field day in which all students participate. A retesting, remeasuring and reexamination program completes the year. In intramurals, the aims are met through physical examinations, application of skill, organization of teams, and diversified programs which arrange 28 activities in which boys may participate. The program is climaxed with tournaments in all activities. Four years ago, Appleton and Neenah boys met in an intramural day. Last year, Neenah joined the two schools. To eliminate any school being champion in the intramural program, boys from each of the three schools made up the personnel of the teams.

The aims of interscholastic programs are met through competitive sports such as football, basketball, wrestling, track, tennis and golf which culminate in a system of awards which are the school letters. Mr. Jorgensen also told the parents of the training rules for interscholastic sports which were drawn up by a committee of all captains of all teams under the supervision of the coaches.

Velte Speaks
Charles Velte emphasized that the physical education program was part and parcel of the educational system for it was part of the system that made for well-balanced boys and girls.

Paying tribute to the Neenah intramural program, Mr. Velte said that he believed, personally, that there was danger of overemphasis of interscholastic sports but that in Neenah, he believed, the situation was under control.

Harold Meyer discussed the benefits of physical education programs, stating that such programs aid the boys and girls to better work in academic activities.

Mr. Haselov pointed out that any statements he might make did not necessarily apply to Neenah's program but to all schools, as he declared that he was opposed to the interscholastic athletic program in schools today.

"The best coach is used for small groups. Games are not always won by ability of the boys but more because of breaks. They tell us that the public demands these exhibitions. I do not believe that a winning team, is of great importance. The only demand is one letter in a local newspaper.

Don't Get Recognition
"I believe that there should be more effort given to those who need development and not to the better players. A boy doesn't go out for practice night after night because of the 100 points he can attain but because he lives in hope of one opportunity of getting into the game. These boys are not always given recognition.

"I believe that it is the fathers and mothers, represented in a PTA such as this, who should be the balancing factor in influencing this school program, not outside influence."

Open forum discussion followed the talks. During the business session at the opening of the meeting, the group voted against membership in the state and national Parent-Teacher association. Mr. Haselov

Neenah Aldermen Agree to Hold Tax Rate at $25 Level

Study Budget at Informal Session; Will Set Levy Officially Thursday

Neenah—The city council informally agreed at a meeting last night at the city hall to set a tax rate for 1940 of $25 per $1,000 of assessed valuation the same as this year's levy. A special meeting will be held Thursday evening to officially set the tax levy.

The tax levy for 1940 will amount to about $449,557.78, it was informally agreed by the aldermen. Expenditures will amount to about $662,441.37, while receipts will total about $212,845.45.

Most of the discussion at the informal budget meeting was concentrated on the school budget, which the aldermen said they would decrease $5,000 from the original request of $229,818, leaving the budget for 1940 at $224,318, an increase of about $12,000 over this year.

The council will pare $5,000 which was set aside for a contingent fund, and the $500 for a roller one-third of which was supposed to have been paid by the school and the rest by the park board and cemetery board, but the latter two groups didn't have that expenditure set aside in their budgets.

The aldermen said that in this year's school budget, money was appropriated for maintenance and repairs, but it was used for salaries of new teachers. The aldermen decided that the council will inform the board of education that it expects the board to use the money for which it is provided in the budget, and that if there are any extraordinary expenses to be incurred, the board should come to the council.

Little Change in Budget
With the exception of the school budget, the other budgets remained about the same. From the poor relief fund, $5,000 was pared, while there was a slight increase in the park board budget. The council agreed to appropriate $3,000 for a new city hall roof, but it didn't set aside any money for street paving which this year amounted to $74,303.

Next year's expenditures will amount to $662,441.37, a $11,000 increase over this year. This year's expenditures actually amounted to $725,574.93, but that included the $74,000 for street paving which isn't included in this year's budget. Deducting the street paving, for comparison, this year's expenditures amounted to $651,271.95.

There will be an $8,000 difference in the 1940 and this year's receipts. The receipts for 1940 will amount to $212,845.45, while for this year they totaled $278,767.70 not including the $74,000 deduction for street paving which would make receipts $204,467.70.

Included in the larger expenditures for 1940 are: School bonds and interest $29,953.13, sewerage bonds and interest $14,725.75, vocational education $23,500, library $11,662.50, disposal plant $21,000, street lighting $14,001.03, poor relief $20,022.65, police department $23,400, fire department $21,700, hydrant rental $20,660, cemetery $10,500, park operation $11,098, state and county tax $96,646.87, and contingent $14,816.66.

Other expenditures include sewer maintenance and construction $5,512.94, old age assistance $4,556.17, street repairs $5,042.67, street lighting $3,800, street cleaning $8,200, garbage and refuse $6,600, swimming pool $7,500, and snow and ice removal $6,000.

Cars Slightly Damaged In Accident at Neenah
Neenah—Automobiles driven by William Koepke, 214 Webster street, and W. H. Burger, 244 Third street, were damaged slightly in a collision at 6:10 last evening on W. Wisconsin avenue and N. Commercial street.

Menasha Council Lowers Tax Rate To $3.20 for 1940

Aldermen Pare 1940 Budget to $570,752, a Drop of $150,000

Menasha—The Menasha council adopted a $3.20 tax rate for 1940, a reduction of 20 cents per hundred, at an adjourned meeting Tuesday night at the city hall.

The 1940 city budget was set at $570,752.66, a reduction of over $150,000 from 1939 when it was $721,615.79. In 1939 the city paid off $115,000 in corporate purpose notes and as that item does not occur in the 1940 budget it is responsible for most of the decrease. Decreases in the school, street department, temporary bank loan, and relief budgets and a $4,000 decrease in the city's share of state and county taxes help to make the decrease in the 1940 budget possible.

The 1940 budget is pared in spite of a decline in estimated receipts a smaller assessed valuation. Estimated receipts for 1940 are $139,596.18 while in 1939 they were estimated at $262,466.19.

The amount of money to be raised by taxation for 1940 will be $431,156.48. This figure is approximately $26,000 under 1939 when the tax levy was $489,149.50. The 1940 tax levy will be assessed against a decreased assessed valuation. Razing of the old Island mill as well as several Woodland Ware buildings was chiefly responsible in lowering the 1939 assessed valuation of the city to $13,473,640. In 1938 it was $13,504,000, approximately $30,000 more for taxation purposes.

Schools Take $106,000
Largest single item of the 1940 budget is $106,000 for the board of education. The school budget was cut nearly $4,000. The street department budget also was slashed. For 1940 it was set at $64,120, a decrease of approximately $12,000 from last year when it was $76,652.

The city's share of state and county taxes is $85,038.62, a decrease of about $4,000 from 1939. Poor relief for 1940 was set at $27,500, a decrease of $7,500 from 1939 when the poor budget totaled $35,000.

Budgets of the vocational school and library board are set by law. The vocational school will receive $20,160 and the library will receive $13,473.64. The park board budget was set at $10,000.

Show Little Change
Other items in the 1940 budget, all very close to their 1939 levels, include bonds and interest $65,125, salaries $53,020, assessment and equalization $1,200, election expense $1,200, street lighting and hydrant rental $35,000, printing and ordinance $1,000, cemetery $1,400, police department except salaries, $2,200, fire department, except salaries, $1,200, public buildings $2,000, Visiting Nurse $500, board of health $5,800, bridges $300, administration expense $4,175, bank guarantee $300, courts $400, sewerage commission $21,000, contingency $4,000.40, celebrations and Memorial day $1,000, police pension $1,140.

The council also adopted a resolution authorizing the monthly payment of real estate taxes. According to the terms of the resolution 20 per cent of the real estate tax must be paid by March 1 or the property will be declared delinquent. If 20 per cent has been paid, the property owner may pay the balance in 10 monthly installments each due the first of the month. The last June, has been ranked in the first 10 per cent of the freshman class in the engineering school at the University of Wisconsin, according to information received here today from the dean.

Twin City Births
A daughter was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bisping, 101 First street, Menasha, at Theda Clark hospital.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dietzen, 128 Abbey avenue, Neenah, this morning at Theda Clark hospital.

interest rate is one-fourth of 1 per cent per month. Personal property taxes must be paid by Jan. 31 or they will be declared delinquent.

A request from the Menasha Junior Association of Commerce and the Community Businessmen's association that $250 be included in the budget for holiday decorations was received. Alderman John R. Scanlon pointed out that the celebrations fund has been increased to $1,000 for 1940 while in 1939 it was $400. He thought that the fund would be sufficient to provide for the decorations as well as band concerts during the summer.

Mayor W. H. Jensen expressed his appreciation to the aldermen for their assistance in working out a budget which would permit a decrease in the tax rate. He pointed out that the task was a difficult one. The council also adopted a resolution guaranteeing payment of state and county taxes, thereby eliminating cost of an extra bond on the city treasurer.

Estimated Receipts
Items included in the estimated receipts are penalties on tax collection $1,100, public utility tax, water and light, state $28,000, income tax $19,000, telephone tax $1,750, milk license $150, tavern license $480, liquor tax $9,882.63, sundry license $50, sewer digger licenses $126.55, building permits $135, cigarette license $375, electric permits $400, court fines $1,800, weed cutting $50, snow and ice removal $100, interest on assessments $800, rent $900, police fees $75, highway aid from state $12,725, water and light return on investment $20,425, cemetery $150, ambulance $250, temporary bank loan $30,000, bicycle licenses $250, return from sewerage commission $2,000, and special assessments, curb, sewers and sidewalks $4,500.

Principal payments on bonded indebtedness to be made in 1940 amount to $55,000 while interest amounts to $10,125, a total of $65,125. Payments to be made include $5,000 principal and $750 interest on high school north addition, $5,000 principal and $1,312.50 interest on Second ward school, $20,000 principal and $425 interest on Fifth ward school and Fourth ward site, $20,000 principal and $5,962.50 interest on sewer bond, $5,000 principal and $1,475 interest on refunding bond, and $200 interest on temporary bank loan.

Diorama Will be Built in Neenah Park This Week

Jacobs Raise Funds for Display Which Depicts Nativity of Christ

Neenah—The life-sized diorama of the Nativity of Christ is expected to be erected in Shattuck park Friday or Saturday, it was announced today by Milton Boehm, chairman of the retail committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Jacobs retail committee has raised funds to purchase the diorama which will cost $275. Neenah industries and persons contributed to the fund.

The diorama will be illuminated every evening until after Jan. 1, and choral groups will sing carols during the evenings at the diorama. Recordings of Christmas carols also will be played.

It will be 12 feet wide, eight feet high and as many feet deep, and it will contain life-sized figures of the infant Jesus, St. Mary, the three wise men and shepherds in the stable at Bethlehem. Across the top will be inscribed, "Peace on Earth Good Will Toward Men." The letters will be cutouts and illuminated from the rear.

A battery of 15 spotlights will be played on the exhibition which will be flanked by lighted Christmas trees, evergreens and holly branches.

Christmas Music
Plans have been completed for the fourth annual Christmas music week which has been taken over by the Jacobs. Amplifying of Christmas music, which will be presented by church and school choirs and choral groups, will get underway Monday afternoon, Dec. 18, and close Saturday evening, Dec. 23.

Mrs. H. B. Scheel, organist at the First Methodist church, has charge of the program and presentations. The music will originate from the chapel of the First Methodist church where the amplifying equipment will be installed, and loudspeakers will be erected on top of the First National bank, Bergstrom Paper company and St. Paul's English Lutheran church.

The programs, which will last about a half hour, will start at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and at 7:30 in the evenings.

Sweaters Awarded to 3 Menasha Boy Scouts

Menasha—Scout sweaters were awarded to three members of Troop No. 29, sponsored by the Menasha Elks lodge, Monday night at Elks hall. Those who received the sweaters were James Jensen, Dale Londo and James Lux. The awards were made to those boys because they had the highest averages in the troop.

The Badger patrol, which put on a "worst-aid" contest, also won the compass relay contest. Plans for separate Christmas parties for each patrol were made.

Donald Carrigan was assigned charge of all advancement in the troop. Warner Londo led the troop in singing new scout songs. The meeting opened with recitation of the scout pledge of allegiance, oath, and laws by the scouts while a spotlight was turned on the flag in the darkened room.

STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT
For years there has been talk of airplane travel in the stratosphere, and some persons may wonder why it has not become common. The answer is that we cannot have success in this field until important problems are met. Work has been done to meet the problems, but they are not simple.

Aviator ready to start on a high altitude flight.

The stratosphere is a vast mass of thin air high above the earth. We do not enter the stratosphere until we rise at least six or seven miles. Above the equator, the stratosphere does not start until we reach a height of from 10 to 12 miles. The place where the stratosphere begins is the place where the temperature stops "falling". All persons who have climbed high mountains know the air is colder on top than at the bottom. On a summer day we may make snowballs on a peak in the Rockies. If we go even higher, we find the air still colder. Men are in danger of freezing to death when they try to climb such a peak as Mount Everest.

Airplanes have gone into the stratosphere, and balloons have risen higher than airplanes. Above a certain point, it has been found that the temperature does not drop; in fact it may rise a bit at extremely high levels.

An idea of the coldness of the stratosphere may be gained from the record obtained over the Dutch East Indies. At a point of 10 and a half miles high the temperature was 131 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit. That is colder than any temperature found near the earth surface, far colder than the air at the North Pole or South Pole.

People who go into the stratosphere must be guarded against the cold. Aviators have worn heated suits which have been pumped full of air to guard against change in air pressure.

The best answer seems to be a sealed-in cabin, and such cabins have been built. They must be extremely strong, and great pains must be taken to keep them airtight. If made in the proper way, such a cabin will supply pilots and passengers with air which is warm enough, and which stays at the right pressure.

When stratosphere planes become common, they will take people through thin air at high speed - probably more than 400 miles per hour. They will rise high above the clouds, and will be out of the reach of storms.

Check Christmas Decorations For Fire, Electrical Hazards

Louis Luebke, city electrical inspector, today asked Appleton residents to be careful when decorating Christmas trees with electric lights this year.

Many fires and accidents still occur each year from mishandling light sets, Luebke said, and all sets should be examined before they are put on the tree, to see that insulation of all wire twists is intact and that the insulation is not pulled back where the wires enter the sockets exposing the copper.

When lamp bases are too long or sockets too short, he said, metal is left exposed and may contact tinsel or metal reflectors. Short circuits caused in this way resulted in many fires last year, he said.

In preparing outdoor decorations for the first time, Luebke advises that a competent electrician prepare the lighting set. Shock hazards are greatly increased in the presence of damp earth.

If electrical toys are given to children for Christmas, parents should inspect them as long as they are in use. Particular attention should be paid to the quality and condition of attachment cords. If cords become worn, they should be replaced before the wire is exposed. Several fires were reported last year, the inspector said, as being caused from sparks from electric trains falling into cotton piled around the base of the Christmas tree. Electric trains usually employ transformers to reduce the house voltage and have excellent safety records, but it is not intended that the tracks be embedded in cotton. When cotton is used for decoration it should be of material specially prepared for that purpose, Luebke said.

Waupaca Woman Back From North Dakota

Waupaca — Mrs. Della Ebbe returned Saturday from Grand Forks, N. D., where, accompanied by her son, Ensign Gordon Ebbe, she visited Miss Jean Grace Ebbe, student at the University of North Dakota. Miss Ebbe had been visiting at his mother's home since his recent graduation from the Pensacola aviation school in Florida. He left Grand Forks for San Pedro, Calif., from which place he sailed Nov. 29 for the Philippine Islands where he is to fly a navy bomber for patrol duty for the United States Naval Reserve. Stops will be made en route at the Hawaiian Islands, Guam and the Midway Islands and he will arrive at the Philippines about Jan. 7. He expects to remain in that part of the service about two years. Mitchell Engbreitson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Engbreitson, Gordon's classmate in 1934 at Waupaca High school, also is located in the Philippines in the United States Naval Reserve submarine service.

Auxiliary at Kimberly Votes Donations for Christmas Purposes

Kimberly — The American Legion auxiliary donated $23 to organizations in the village at its regular meeting, at the clubhouse Monday evening. It voted $10 to the community Christmas party which will be held at the clubhouse on the evening of Dec. 21; $10 to the Boy Scouts, who will deliver the community calendar to each home in the village this week and $3 was given to the anti-tuberculosis association, of which Mrs. W. H. Webb is the local chairman.

Mrs. I. C. Clark president of the unit, appointed Mrs. B. J. Ouellette and Mrs. George McElroy to the Community Chest committee.

A patriotic luncheon will be given in February when the local organization will entertain the Outagamie chapter. The following committee will be in charge: Mrs. Jack Limpert, Mrs. Arthur Hopfensperger and Mrs. Richard Lamers. After the business session cards were played after which refreshments were served.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. B. J. Ouellette, first, and Mrs. George McElroy, low, at bridge; Mrs. Henry Busch, first, and Mrs. Paul Bush, low, at schafkopf; Mrs. Anton Vandenberg, first, and Mrs. George Hankwitz, low, at rummy. The refreshment committee consisted of Mrs. Andrew DeLeeuw, Mrs. Joseph Dietzen, Mrs. Clarence Fleweger, Mrs. I. C. Clark and Mrs. O. H. Ehke. The meeting was in the form of a Christmas party.

State Association Issues Report on Loans Made During Year

Milwaukee — (AP) — The Wisconsin Bankers' association made public today a report which it said indicated that Wisconsin banks actively are serving the credit needs of their communities.

The report, prepared by the American Bankers' association in cooperation with the state groups' subcommittee on commercial loans, headed by D. H. Cooney of Sheboygan, covered 289 banks in 58 of Wisconsin's 71 counties.

The survey showed that these banks:

1. Made 121,321 new commercial, industrial and agricultural loans totaling $111,233,409 during the first six months of 1939.

2. Renewed 145,241 outstanding loans totaling $202,717,119 in the same period.

3. Made 3,394 new mortgage loans to home owners and other real estate owners, totaling $9,544,761. In addition to lending on individual applications, the report said, banks in larger cities maintained "open lines of credit" in specific amounts, available at all times to such borrowers. Forty-nine banks reported maintenance of such "open lines of credit" in the aggregate of $102,232,261, and that a total of $27,971,624, or 27.35 per cent, was being used by borrowers.

The 289 reporting banks represented 46.7 per cent of the 576 commercial banks in the state. The average loan was for $917, the average loan renewal $1,396, and the average mortgage loan $2,812.

G.O.P. Program Committee Maps Out Its Proposals

Move May be Made to Pigeonhole Recommendations Until Convention

Washington (AP)—The Republican program committee has reached the drafting stage of its 1940 platform proposals, but an effort may be made to pigeonhole its recommendations until the national convention.

The committee, headed by Dr. Glenn Frank, has been studying possible platform planks since 1937. Suggested drafts are being circulated among its 200 members for final consideration.

It generally has been expected that the committee would file its recommendations with the Republican national committee early next year. Authoritative sources reported today, however, that some leaders were working quietly to have the report held up. These leaders argue, it was said, that a declaration of principles in advance of the convention merely would set up a new target for Democratic fire. They also were said to contend that some Republicans almost certainly would disapprove of the suggested program and that party friction would result.

The program committee originally was created in response to demands that Republicans hold a mid-term national convention in 1938. Forces of Alf M. Landon were among those opposing the convention idea, which was said to have the backing of former President Herbert Hoover. The program committee was set up as a compromise.

Even if the Frank committee should wish to announce its program, early next year, the national committee would have the authority to withhold it until the convention.

One party authority said it was possible that the committee merely would file an interim report on its activities and delay its recommendations until the convention.

Appleton, Oshkosh Debate Teams Meet; Discuss Railroads

The Appleton High school debate squad was at Oshkosh Monday to discuss with Oshkosh High school debaters the question: "Resolved, That the federal government should own and operate the railroads."

Coach Edgar Hagene accompanied the squad. On Appleton's first affirmative team were Harold Weiland and Stanley Williams. On the second affirmative squad were James Piette and Richard Palmbach. The first negative team had Ardyce Peters and Cele Speel for members; the second, Sylvia Wittman and Emily Posnak; and the third, Oscar Boldt and Guenther Holtz.

The debates at Oshkosh were conducted before the afternoon English and history classes. Each team participated in three debates. Criticism was offered by class room instructors who acted as judges and discussion by the classes followed.

The Appleton debaters met Kaukauna Friday afternoon at Appleton High school. Boldt and Holtz debated on the negative and Weiland and Williams on the affirmative. The debate was non-decision.

HOW KICKING STARTED

Rosauke, Va. (AP)—Statisticians calculated it could happen only once in 54,000 cuttings of a deck of cards. Six married couples here, comprising the Sleepy Hollow Bridge Club, met regularly for 11 years and cut cards for partners. One night recently, the cutting paired man and wife as partners in all six couples. That's the way they were paired for the first hand over a decade ago.

Commodity price inflation improbable. New all-time high records likely for petroleum refining, electric power output, tobacco products, airplane production.

Wage payments within 4 per cent of 1937, when they reached peak levels since the depression's bottom.

Forecasts Good Business in 1940

Economist Thinks National Income Will Show Increase Next Year

Cleveland (AP)—Colonel Leonard P. Ayres is cheerful about 1940 business prospects.

Industrial production will be indexed around 110, against about 105 this year, he said Tuesday, and national income will attain some 71 billions, against 1939's 69 billion.

The Cleveland economist, who calculates he has batted .350 in the 17 years he has made such annual predictions, said "the war and the coming political campaign make confident forecasting possible."

Nevertheless he predicted: Building contracts probably larger than those of any previous recovery year, and the largest since 1930.

Merchandise imports lower than '39, exports probably higher.

Department store sales higher than '39 but lower than '37. Railroad freight loadings probably exceeding 1939's, but by less than 10 per cent.

Outputs of iron and steel probably not varying by more than 12 per cent from 1939's.
